Special town meeting called

A special town meeting has been called by the Wilmington selectmen. It is to be held Monday, March 28, starting at 7:30 p.m., in the Herbert C. Barrows Auditorium of Wilmington High School. There will be but one article to be discussed, and with luck the town meeting can be completed in 15 minutes or less.

For more years than some people like to remember, there has been discussion about constructing an economical, environmentally sound facility to burn solid waste and to produce energy in northeastern Massachusetts. Many of the communities in Massachusetts and New Hampshire have taken part. An agreement has been reached for the construction of a facility in North Andover, to burn 1500 tons per day of refuse and to generate energy with the facility. Financial payments are expected to be made to the participating communities.

The project is scheduled to start on or before April 15, 1983, and to be completed on or before April 15, 1986. There is a service agreement, which lasts for 20 years after commercial operatons have begun.

The New England Power Company will buy the energy under a 20 year contract. Participating communities are to receive 89.5 percent of the energy revenues, and 50 percent of the net, from sale of recovered metals.

The project is being financed by industrial revenue bonds. Contracting communities will pay a service fee, including funds for payment of the debt service. Each community will contract to deliver a certain amount of tonnage. The facility is to be operated by a private company (UOP) which will commit a special credit to reduce the service fee.

In an elaborately planned inter-community project such as this, bond counsel must approve before bonds can be sold. Approval of this type is always a problem, for somewhere along the line some counsel is liable to object to some point, and the consequence is that no bonds can be issued.

It is always difficult for a town to sell bonds. When 100 towns and cities are involved, in one bonding issue, the difficulties are very much compounded. The present bonding involves $197 million. A very favorable rate has been obtained, in two parts. Ten and one-eighth percent will be paid on non-taxable bonds payable at par, in 2002, and the same interest is to be paid on the other part, for bonds to be paid in 2006, and sold at 99.5 percent of par. There are also taxable bonds to sell which will pay 14 percent.

Wilmington, Burlington and Boxboro have legal problems in the way the initial bonding went through the town meeting. Those problems have to be straightened out if the bonds are

Jewel Drive lot offered for sale

Lot 10A of Jewel Drive Park is to be offered for sale by the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority (WRA) to the highest bidder. The decision to sell was made at the authority's meeting on March 8 and will probably be advertised March 16.

Lot 10 is over an acre in area, in land between Jewel Drive and Main Street. There is some wetland and at present there is no egress to Jewel Drive. That would have to be cleared with the Wilmington Planning Board by any purchaser.

The WRA is at present the sole custodian of Jewel Drive, pending further decisions and pending a public hearing to be held March 22 to clarify planning board rulings with reference to underground utilities, such as electric lights and telephones. The former developer, Marteg, had been duscussing the sale of Lot 10A to Altron, an electronics manufacturer, which has over three acres of land on Jewel Drive. No final agreement was ever reached.

Altron does own land between its present facility and Main Street and may be interested in purchasing Lot 10A to offer an opportunity to have better planning. That company could gain access from its present property if the planning board did not find reason to grant access.

A complication in the potential sale or purchase of Lot 10A is the fact that new regulations for Massachusetts go into effect April 1 for the developing of wetlands. They are not clearly understood. Chester Bruce, chairman of the Wilmington Conservation Commission, told the WRA March 8 that many owners and developers are now filing plans with the commission and with the state authorities so as to defeat the new April 1 deadline on wetland control.

The WRA voted to allow the secretary, Nickie Johnson, to authorize any firms which may be classified as potential bidders to file plans on the wetlands of Lot 10A before April 1, if that be their decision. The purpose is to give any advantage that may occur because of the early date of filing.

If the WRA should sell Lot 10A in Jewel Drive Park, it will remain with one lot of land in its possession, Lot 9. Lot 9, at the end of Jewel Drive, is about 10 acres, zoned for industry and is probably worth $450,000.

House passes bill for local allocation of funds on Ballardvale Street job

A bill which would allow the town of Wilmington to allocate money on the rebuilding of Ballardvale Street was passed yesterday by the Massachusetts House of Representatives. The bill now moves to the Senate. Rep. Jim Miceli has predicted that it will be on the governor's desk next week.

The bill allows 70-odd cities and towns to directly allocate state funds for public works projects. Last year, a state grant was announced giving Wilmington $806,000 for the Ballardvale Street project. The money, as presented in the grant, would have been allocated by the state. With the town managing the project, Miceli said that the project should have a construction start within six months.

Industrialization of the Ballardvale Street area has generated a large traffic flow on a street that, prior to the construction of Route 93, was a sleepy farm lane. Several years ago, the town of Andover paid the town of Wilmington $50,000 to upgrade the street, because traffic from several Andover industries, including Gillette, use Ballardvale Street as a primary means of access. The push to further upgrade the street came both from industries in the area and from Andover residents beseiged with traffic, since many drivers attempt to avoid the Ballardvale Street bottleneck by using alternate routes in the Ballardvale section of Andover.

Garrett named acting high school principal

Harold Garrett of Ledgewood Road, Wilmington has been named acting principal of Wilmington High School, to replace Dr. George Eisenberg. Mr. Garrett will assume the position on Monday. The decision was by a unanimous vote of the school committee last week, with one member absent.

Mr. Garrett has served as assistant principal of the high school for 15 years. Prior to that, he had taught in the Boston school system for 10 years. He holds a Master's Degree in public administration from Boston State College.

A member of the board of directors of Lexington Christian Academy, he is a past president of the National Federation of Bible Classes and a past president of the Parents Association of Gordon College. He is presently serving on the board of elders of Grace Chapel in Lexington.

Seminar on Sunday store openings

A major seminar on the impact of Sunday openings for retail stores will be conducted by the Northern Middlesex Chamber of Commerce and Industry at the Tewksbury Holiday Inn on March 11 according to David P. Cordeau, chief executive officer.

Believed to be the first of its kind since the repeal of the so-called "Blue Laws" legislation, the seminar will address what the new law requires; promotion and marketing strategies; types of goods likely to interest Sunday shoppers in Massachusetts; and the possible economic impact on the State.

Scheduled as speakers are State Representative Timothy Bassett, author of the Blue Laws repeal legislation, who will talk on the legalities and background of the legislation; Bethany Kendall, vice president of Downtown Crossing Association of Boston, who will address the promotional aspects; William Phipps, executive director of the Massachusetts Association of Retailers, who will talk about the importance of the State retail community; and Vincent Botti, vice president of Zayre Corporation and manager of its Northeast Zone, who will discuss the merchandising aspects.

The luncheon speaker following the morning-long seminar will be Commissioner Ernest A. Lucci, Massachusetts Department of Commerce and Development. He will address the economic impact of the increased revenue.

The Northern Middlesex Chamber of Commerce and Industry, faced with the chance of slowing the Sunday exodus to New Hampshire markets, has designed the program to accommodate retail owners, managers, promotion and advertising staff and merchandisers. The Northern Middlesex organization includes the Chambers of Commerce in Billerica, Chelmsford, Dracut, Lowell, Tewksbury, Tyngsboro, Dunstable and Westford.

Reservations may be made by calling the Chamber at 454-5633, or writing to 144 Merrimack St., Lowell, MA 01852.

THANKSGIVING NOVENA TO ST. JUDE

Oh Holy St. Jude, Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue and rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ, faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such great power to come to my assistance.

Help me in my present and urgent petition. In return, I promise to make your name known, and cause you to be invoked.

Say three Our Fathers, three Hail Marys and Glorias. Publication must be promised. St. Jude pray for us and all who invoke your aid, Amen. This Novena has never been known to fail. I have had my request granted.

Publication promised.

Dan Gillis running for housing authority

A. Daniel Gillis of Randolph Road is a candidate for a seat on the Wilmington Housing Authority on Election day April 16, 1983.

Dan Gillis has helped people in Wilmington for many years and became noted enough to be appointed to the Wilmington Planning Board in 1955. He served the town as a planning board member for 16 years. He served as director of Region 5A in planning and president of the Mass. Federation of Planning Boards where he still holds membership as a director.

He then served six years as a selectman where he displayed qualities of leadership and interest in the town problems as well as problems of the private citizen.

As a selectman he accomplished many things but most important he helped the elderly in organizing and obtaining their first budget at town meeting.

He has watched many errors being committed time after time over the last two and a half to three years in attempts to obtain more housing for the elderly. He is aware of all the problems involved in developing more housing for Wilmington residents.

Dan Gillis

He believes with his background in planning and administration he can move ahead with enthusiasm and cooperation to bring about a more satisfactory and cooperative conclusion to the housing problem.

Dan Gillis believes the housing needs of the people under 30 years and over 62 years of age is top priority.

Michael Caira seeks re-election as moderator

Michael A. Caira, 33, of 3 Moore St., Wilmington has announced his candidacy for re-election to the position of town moderator. The election will be held Saturday, April 16.

In announcing his candidacy, Caira stressed his professional background in government service, his active involvement in community affairs and his thorough understanding of the town meeting process.

Mr. Caira received a bachelor of science degree in management from Boston College in 1971 and a master's degree in public administration from Northeastern University in 1982. He is a former member of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen and he was elected to his current town post in April, 1982. Caira has also served the community as a member of the Middlesex County Advisory Board, the MBTA Advisory Board and as director of Share, the Greater Lowell drug rehabilitation program. He is presently a member of the Winchester Hospital Corporation.

Mr. Caira is employed with the Commonwealth of Massachusetts as the administrative assistant to the Commissioner of the Division of Capital Planning and Operations. He was formerly employed as the business administrator of Metropolitan State Hospital in Waltham and served for three and a half years as a member of the executive staff of former Massachusetts Governor Francis Sargent.

Mr. Caira is a past president of the Boston Archdiocsean Young Adult Council and was a 1972 recipient of the "Eagle of the Cross," the highest national Catholic youth and young adult award. He is a member and former officer of the Wilmington Sons of Italy. He currently serves as the organization's national deputy and as chairman of the state's Social Justice Commission. He is a member and former officer of the Greater Lowell Baseball Umpires' Association. He was named an "Outstanding Young Man of America" in 1974.

Michael Caira is married to the former Jane Tryon of Belmont. They have three children, Jennifer 9, Angela 7, and Michael 4. The 25-year resident of Wilmington feels that his municipal experience and organizational skills qualify him for the position. "It is important that the legitimate interests of the townspeople are afforded a full and proper hearing at town meeting. My objective is to provide full citizen access while ensuring the efficient flow of town business."

Caira welcomes comments on his candidacy and encourages residents to contact him at 658-6062.

George Hooper candidate for re-election to housing authority

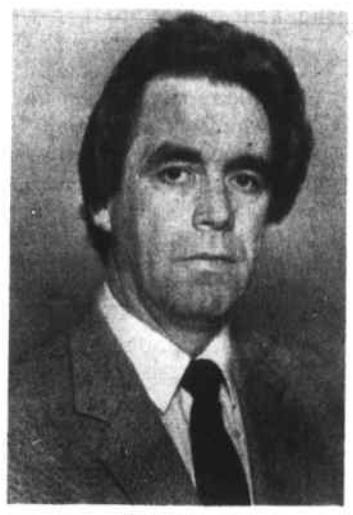

George Hooper has annouced that he will be a candidate for re-election to the Wilmington Housing Authority.

Mr. Hooper was first appointed to the authority 10 years ago and first elected nine years ago. He is now completing his third term in elective office.

His one and only purpose is to provide decent housing for the elderly people of Wilmington and for other residents who are in need. There is a need for housing for the elderly in Wilmington, a need which should be met.

During his tenure, and working with other people, Hooper has successfully pursued funding for additional housing in Wilmington. It was the first time in a quarter of a century in which the town was favorably considered for housing.

Mr. Hooper intends to continue to pursue this course. The need for housing is very outstanding in Wilmington.

George Hooper

There are today stringent budgets and guidelines. Funds are scarce. It is important to elect an experienced person to the housing authority, someone who is sincere and dedicated.

As the costs of housing continue upward it is paramount that the housing authority approach the needs of the community in a professional and dignified manner; and it is for these reasons that Mr. Hooper seeks re-election.

During the past 10 years Mr. Hooper has been successful in obtaining funds for extensive repairs and modernization of the facility at Deming Way. He is actively working toward obtaining further funds for the extension of the sewer from Deming Way to the trunk line, at no expense, and will work with other boards who have similar ideas.

George Hooper is qualified by education and experience. He holds a responsible position with the Insurance Division of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. He is dedicted to teh community and is supportive of many town activities.

He is a hearing officer in the Merit Rating Department of the Commonwealthof Massachusetts, Division of Insurance. He and his wife Alice, and their three children live at 12 Allen Park Drive.

When I was elected in 1980, I was faced with a challenge of helping make town government cost efficient. Through careful study of the budget, elimination of waste and duplication, cutbacks by attrition, and more efficient management, we have held the line on the budget.

Through innovative leadership, the basic services were maintained. In addition, a water treatment plant and sewerage project provided new services to improve the quality of life in town within our operating budget.

This is a good start. As in the past, I will work toward meeting these challenges and needs within a workable budget.

Editorial

Housing race involves some history

If there is one race in Wilmington's town election that is generating some interest, it's the race for housing authority. So far, the race has been relatively quiet. The background, however, is very interesting.

George Hooper, chairman of the housing authority, is seeking re-election, facing three challengers, Dan Gillis, Bill Belbin and Elmer Parker.

The housing authority is a local board operating under mandates of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The authority manages 40 units of elderly housing at Deming Way, plus eight rental homes in various parts of town. The authority had been working for many years, attempting to bring more housing to Wilmington. Stymied in its attempts to qualify for state funding, the authority finally applied directly to the federal government through the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The authority was seeking housing for elderly and family use. The first approval was given for the family housing. A site was selected on West Street, on the east side of Route 93. After some preliminary exploration of the site, it was ruled out because of wetlands.

This action, however, was enough to convince HUD that Wilmington was serious about seeking family housing. HUD then gave the housing authority the go-ahead for some elderly housing. Wilmington had filed with HUD a Housing Action Plan (HAP) signed by a majority of the selectmen, which called for 80 units of elderly and 25 units of family housing.

The authority then went through a site selection process. Then, with a list of possible sites, proposals were sought from developers. Five developers submitted bids. These bids were reviewed by the authority, under HUD guidelines.

Of the five proposals, the housing authority selected one submitted by Berkshire Builders of Bedford, New Hampshire. The Berkshire proposal called fortwo adjacent developments to be built near McNamara Tire. The 80 units of elderly housing would be on a parcel accessible from Main Street. The 25 units of family housing would be on a parcel accessible from Glen Road, by way of the King Street extension.

As the authority moved toward town meeting action for the proposed housing, opposition began developing. Persons living near the proposed sites began attending housing authority meetings. Before long, they had attracted other people, and organized under the name of the Concerned Citizens of Wilmington.

The housing authority meetings of July and August, 1980 were long, hot, crowded and often noisy. The chairman of the authority at the time was Barbara Larson. George Hooper was vice chairman. While some interested citizens came to listen, others came to complain, and some of them did so very loudly.

Mrs. Larson's reaction was to clamp down on public speaking at the housing authority meetings. She ruled that anyone wanting to speak had to be placed on the agenda, and then ruled that anyone wanting to be placed on the agenda had to request this in writing, three days before the meeting. Her action maintained order within the meetings, but infuriated many people.

Meanwhile, the authority had met with the selectmen and had requested that two articles be placed on the warrant for a special town meeting in September. One was to modify the age of eligibility for elderly housing in the town's zoning bylaw, bringing it into compliance with HUD's guidelines. The other was to transfer ownership of a parcel of town-owned land to Berkshire Builders, giving them sufficient frontage to satisfy the zoning bylaws.

When the selectmen closed the warrant for the September town meeting, neither of the housing authority's two articles was included.

It was at this point that the housing authority voted to invoke Chapter 774, also known as the anti-snob zoning law. Under 774, a developer can require a town to group all local permit actions into one comprehensive permit, with the decision to be made by the board of appeals.

Hearings were held, both by the board of appeals and by the conservation commission, which does not come under the comprehensive permit, but before decisions could be rendered, the applications were withdrawn by Berkshire.

Another special town meeting was called in early December 1980 to vote on the housing authority's articles. Opponents of the housing submitted an article for the same meeting which would have taken the Berkshire site by eminent domain, as conservation land. None of the articles passed. At the town meeting, the housing authority was pressed to rescind the decision to use 774. Members of the authority agreedd to do so at their next meeting, which they did.

In early 1981, members of the Concerned Citizens were shocked to learn that Berkshire Builders had initiated a $5 million lawsuit against the town, the selectmen, the Concerned Citizens, individual members of the selectmen and the Concerned Citizens, the housing authority, and some people who were not members of the Concerned Citizens, but who had spoken in opposition to the housing project at the town meeting. The lawsuit ws eventually withdrawn, but not before some defendants had been put to considerable legal expense.

In 1981, Barbara Larson decided not to run for re-election and Warren Newhouse was elected. Hooper became chairman and in the 1981 annual town meeting, the town voted to turn the vacant Buzzell School over to the housing authority. No funding has been secured for any conversion of that building to housing for the elderly, and it sits empty.

At the 1982 annual town meeting, articles were submitted to allow Berkshire to proceed with 50 units of elderly housing on the site near McNamara Tire, plus 10 units of family housing on scattered sites. At the town meeting, Town Counsel Alan Altman announced that Berkshire had withdrawn the $5 million suit. The articles were defeated, and Berkshire withdrew from the project a couple of months later.

Throughout the controversy, various personalities have been subject to side-battles, and George Hooper certainly was among those personalities. One other personality, Paul Theodos, charged that Hooper was mismanaging the authority. State audits of authority records, though, have not borne out any such allegations.

Hooper, meanwhile, has remained a steadfast advocate of building more housing, and has opposed suggestions that it be locally financed. Concerned Citizens members have opposed HUD financing, charging that federal financing means federal control. Hooper has said that the money for building housing is not in question, so much as the money to operate it. He does not feel the town can afford it.

With Hooper up for re-election, people who were involved with the Concerned Citizens are actively opposing him. A. Daniel Gillis, a member of the Concerned Citizens, is one candidate who is running against Hooper. For many years, Gillis was a fixture on the planning board, and he has served two terms as a selectmen. His announcement of candidacy appears elsewhere in this issue, as does Hooper's. Both are interesting reading.

Other candidates are Wilson Belbin and Elmer Parker, neither of whom have any involvement with the Concerned Citizens. Belbin is a former housing authority member who has also served on the redevelopment authority and the Wilmington Council on Aging. A retired carpenter, he is a staunch advocate for senior citizens. Bebin is probably best known as a man who often speaks up at town meeting, to the point where he is one of the more noteworthy personalities at town meetings. He has remained fairly quiet so far in this campaign.

One man who has not remained quiet is Elmer "Sonny" Parker. Parker's best forum is the coffee shop circuit, and he can often be found in Winston's Coffee Shop, where he is a one-man floor show. His wit is very sharp, but his comments make it difficult to take him seriously as a candidate.

With the Berkshire proposal completely in the past, the housing authority is now in a position where, having lost the $5 million federal grant for that project, new avenues are being explored for additional housing. One of the most promising plans involves the installation of a sewer line to serve the present housing at Deming Way, which would allow the use of land now occupied by a septic system for additional housing. Discussion also continues over the use of closed school buildings as additional housing.

While all the candidates are advocating more housing, they are all coming from very different positions. Voters will be faced with having to sort out the personalities of the candidates from the positions.

Heartland's neighbors air their woes

Several residents from the area of Kennedy, Navillus and Senaca Roads came well equipped with several questions to a board of public works meeting on Saturday, Febraury 26. The board listened to the woes the residents say were brought on by the construction of the new Heartland Food Warehouse.

The residents had been seeking action relative to the roads in the area for some weeks. They had been on the agenda for four meetings which were not held.

The town Department of Public Works (DPW) engineer said that a hearing date for accepting those roads as town streets could be set for Tuesday, April 19.

But, the people still wanted to discuss the roads.

Mr. Skowronski of Navillus Road told the selectmen that the rotary near his home had been torn up last fall and that all fall and winter there had been sand blowing across the property where he lives. The streets, he said, were being used by motor vehicles which were not registered.

Selectman Bill Hallisey told the people that they own the street to the middle of the road, or to wherever their deed specifies. He said that the residents who discover they do own the street have the right to stop trucks that are being driven on "your property." He added that if the residents didn't take measures to do so, "it's your fault!"

"You can take them to court! It's your responsibility!" he said.

Chairman Dick Morris said that he had talked with the owner of the store property and reported that they said things would be fixed in spring.

Selectman Dick Trueba moved that the cost of finishing the subdivision be ascertained and given to the selectmen, by the DPW engineer. It was voted.

Alan Kelley of Navillus Road told the selectmen he had talked with people at Purity Supreme, Heartland's parent company, and said he had been told there would be a fence installed around the perimeter of the property next summer. He said company officials would send him a work schedule and added the Purity official he spoke with was "very cooperative."

Another resident of the area went on to describe drivers of equipment crossing Kennedy Road as though they owned it. His daughter's car had been struck by one of the vehicles, he claimed. "No registration - no nothing," he said.

He, too, was told that if he owned the street he could take action. "The police department can handle it," Trueba said.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

Your recent editorial on the fingerprinting of children reflects our community's growing concern over the rising number of crimes against children. Fingerprinting our kids might be helpful, but parents may also want to educate their children as a way to protect them from harm.

One option available through Camp Fire is the "Caution Without Fear" program. By using games, simulations, puzzles, cartoons and follow-up home activities, Camp Fire kids are encouraged to develop safe habits and common sense in situations involving strangers. Over the past two years, over 200 adult leaders have received special training in the "Caution Without Fear" program so they can present the activities to the children in their groups. The response from leaders and parents has been very positive, and it has prompted our council of Camp Fire to look into ways of offering the program to children in the community who are not already members of the organization.

For example, Caution Without Fear could be offered in cooperation with schools, churches, health centers or any other community organization that is interested in the welfare of our kids. I feel that we as parents have the responsibility to educate our children in safetyskills that could prevent a tragedy. This "Caution Without Fear" program offers a positive place to start.

I would appreciate it if you would help us inform parents, teachers and community leaders of this vitally important program. If we can prevent even one child from being harmed, it will be worth the effort.

To find out more about the "Caution Without Fear" program, your readers may call the Council for Greater Boston Camp Fire office at (617) 482-2230.

Very truly yours,
Stephanie Meegan

Building inspector loses gas privilege

There will be no more full tanks of town bought gas going into the car of Building Inspector Bill Granfield. So the selectmen of Tewksbury have voted, by a 3-2 margin.

Granfield uses his personal car in the business of being a building inspector. Ever since a September 1982 town meeting vote raising the rate of reimbursement from 12 cents a mile to 20 cents a mile for employees using personal cars for town business, Granfield has been getting one tankfull of gas a week and 20 cents a mile reimbursement while doing town related work.

That pratice has come under criticism by members of the Tewksbury Finance Commiteee and was discussed on February 16 by the Tewksbury Selectmen.

Granfield seems to be the only Tewksbury official with such an agreement with the town. The agreement was hashed out when Granfield first agreed to use his personal car to perform town business. At that time, the selectmen agreed that Granfield could fill his gas tank once a week in addition to getting 12 cents a mile. Granfield had argued that the 12 cent a mile reimbursement alone was not enough to cover the expense of using his personal car for town business.

Selectmen Dick Trueba and Bill Hallisey defended Granfield's position.

Hallisey said, "If we change, then maybe we should buy him a car." That action would strip Granfield of getting the 20 cents a mile and allow him to fill the town car with gas.

Trueba said he believed Granfield had been "very decent" in the doing of town business. Selectman Dick Morris agreed with Hallisey that Granfield did take the job at 12 cents a mile, but added, the pay was increased to 20 cents a mile.

Trueba countered with statements about gas for the car of the chief of police, and the chief of the fire department, with Morris pointing out that they were "emergency cars." Trueba felt it was all town business.

Selectman Charles Coldwell, not in favor of the tankful of gas idea, suggested a check of all the records and warned, "Others will try to get in."

Paul Sullivan made a motion to have the records checked. Coldwell moved that the town stop giving away free tanks of gas.

Sullivan's motion was voted unanimously. Coldwell's motion was voted 3-2, with Hallisey and Trueba voting no.

Two contracts for DRC

Dynamics Research Corp. of Concord Street, Wilmington has received two large defense contracts.

One contract is for $142,312.04, the third phase of a contract totalling $415,907.00 from the U.S. Navy to support its Carrier Aircraft Inertial Navigation Sytem (CAINS). This program monitors the naviation systems of all aircraft carriers in the U.S. Navy's fleet.

Each aircraft carrier is equipped with a complete airwing of planes including fighter attack, anti-submarine and early warning aircraft. Dynamics Research is responsible for tracking the reliability, readiness and logistics of the inertial navigation systems on all these planes.

The corporation has completed negotiations with the U.S. Air Force for a contract totalling $3,997,642 to develop guidance and control database analysis work in the MX missile program.

The firm will use the data and the results of the analyses to identify potential problems in reliability and performance to locate causes of known problems and to suggest solutions to the Air Force.

Dynamics Research Corp. is a defense contractor supplying technical services for both the public and private sectors. It also manufactures components and systems for industrial measurement.

Tewksbury kindergarten registration April 11

Registration for all children who will enter Kindergarten in September 1983 will take place at the North Street, Heath Brook and Shawsheen Schools on Monday, through Friday, April 11 through 15 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., and 12:30 to 2 p.m. The Heath Brook School will also be open for registration on Monday evening, April 11 from 7 to 9. The North Street School will be open for registration Tuesday evening, April 12 from 7 to 9. The Shawsheen School will be open on Wednesday, April 13 from 7 to 9 p.m.

In order to be eligible for Kindergarten a child must be five years of age on or before January 1, 1984. A birth certificate or proof of age must be submitted before a child enters school in September.

No child will be admitted to school without a certificate of immunization. It is strongly recommended that parents at the time of registration take records indicating the dates immunization was completed. Certain immunizations are required and must be completed by the first day of school.

The required immunizations for students entering Kindergarten are:

1. Diptheria, Tetanus and Pertussis: A total of four shots of DTP, if the child is five years old or younger. If the child has reached his sixth birthday before completing the series, it would be completed with Td No. 2, rather than DPT No. 1. No Pertussis vaccine should be given after the sixth birthday. Children six years of age and over, who have not received the DPT, should receive three injections of Td.

2.Oral Polio Vaccine: Three basic drinks (1 Booster, one year after third drink. On entering Kindergarten all children who have completed a series of oral polio vaccine should be given a single booster dose, all others should complete primary series).

3. Measles: One shot after 12 months; 4.Mumps: one shot; 4. Rubella: one shot. (Measles, mumps and rubella are usually combined into a single shot administered as one shot.)

Note: Small pox is no longer required or recommended.

Although a child may be refused admission to school if he-she does not meet the immunization requirements, it is not intended that any child whose parents comply with the intent of Chapter 161 (mandated Immunization Requirements) should be excluded from school even for a single day. A note from a private physician or town clinic indicating that required immunizations have been started is evidence of such compliance.

In order to determine the needs of your child, it may be necessary to contact your doctor if the immunizaitons were administered by a private physician, or the Tewksbury Board of Health. Those unable to receive immunizations or boosters from their private doctors will be able to participate in immunization clinics held once every other month by the Tewksbury Board of Health free of charge. Additional information pertaining to immunization requirements and immunization clinics may be obtained from the board of health, school principals and-or school nurse.

John Haley was machinist

John Haley of 3 Lloyd Rd., Wilmington died suddenly Wednesday, March 2 at his residence.

Seventy-nine years of age at the time of his death, he was born in Arlington, the son of the late Lillian (Gilligan) and the late John Haley. Prior to retirement he served as a machinist for the General Electric Company.

A resident of Wilmington for more than 50 years, he was a member of the Wilmington Senior Citizens.

Mr. Haley was the husband of the late Leona M. (Delorande) Haley and father of Mrs. Frances Ferullo of Stoneham, Mrs. A. Marie Woods of Longmeadow, Mrs. Patricia Field of Lawrence and the late Alice Haley. He was grandfather of 13 and great-grandfather of four.

The funeral was held from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home, 374 Main St., Wilmington Saturday morning at 9:15 followed by a funeral mass at St. Dorothy's Church at 10:00 celebrated by the Rev. Father William Smith. Burial followed in Wildwood Cemetery with Paul Field, Dan Ferullo, Mike Vacca, John Woods, Matt Woods and Kevin Boudreaux serving as pall bearers.

Malcolm Joyce, Korean veteran

Malcolm Joyce of 22 Atlantic Ave., Wilmington died suddenly at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington Saturday evening.

Mr. Joyce, who was 48 years of age at the time of his death, was born in Boston the son of the late Gertrude (O'Brien) and the late Henry Joyce. He lived in Dorchester most of his life before moving to Wilmington six years ago.

Mr. Joyce was a veteran of the Korean Conflict, having served with the U.S. Marine Corps. He held membership in the Woburn Sportsmens Club and at the time of his death was employed as a draftsman for Raytheon Company, Burlington, a position he held for many years.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Concetta (Vacca) Joyce and his son, Stephen H. Joyce of Marlboro.

Funeral services were held from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home, 374 Main St., Wilmington Tuesday morning at 9:15 followed by a funeral mass at St. Thomas Church at 10:00 celebrated by the Rev. Victor LaVoie. Burial followed in Wildwood Cemetery.

Serving as pall bearers for Mr. Joyce were: Mark Beauregard, Michael Fuccillo, John Vacca and Pino Ialuna.

Counseling service annual meeting

The Wilmington Family Counseling Service, Inc., will hold its annual meeting at 8 p.m., Thursday, March 10 at the First Baptist Church. Interested people in the community are urged to attend.

The Wilmington Family Counseling Service is th eonly non-profit agency providing mental health services in the community and has a contract with the town to provide services to residents on a sliding-fee basis.

In 1982, the agency provided 1739 counseling and therapy sessions to 121 families. Nineteen group sessions were held for three workshops - Effective Parenting, Recently Separated and Divorced People, and Managing Conflict. The cost to the town for the service provided was $3.90 per scheduled appointment which is a decrease of 80 percent from $19.67 in 1976.

Bank merger

A cake-cutting ceremony marked the merger of the Melrose Savings Bank and the Reading Savings Bank on February 1. Preparing to cut the cake are John Wood, president of Melrose Savings and Clayton Foote, president of Reading Savings. The merger resulted in a new name, Massbank for Savings. Headquartered in Reading the bank has two branches in Wilmington.

Veterans seek convertibles for Memorial Day parade

The demise of the convertible has presented a problem for veterans' groups in the Memorial Day parade. At one time, automobile dealers in Wilmington would loan new convertibles for parades. But now there are no new convertibles, or so few that they are cars that have to be specially ordered.

Fred Shine, commander of the Wilmington Disabled American Veterans, has issued an appeal to owners of classic convertibles who would be willing to participate in the Memorial Day parade. The owners would be driving their own cars, and would have passengers, including Gold Star Mothers.

The cars are needed for two parades. In addition to the Memorial Day parade on May 30, a small parade will be held on May 21, for the dedication of the John Fullerton memorial on Grove Avenue.

Anyone with a classic convertible, willing to participate in either or both parades should call Fred Shine at 273-1697.

ANALGESIA FOR CHILDREN
Maybe you have a child who keeps saying he doesn't want to go to the dentist because it will hurt. But with modern dental techniques, most of the pain and discomfort have disappeared. What has to be overcome in the case of children, in particular, is the sense of fear, and this can be accomplished with a technique called analgesia (literally, "absence of pain").
An analgesic is an anesthetic agent, such as nitrous-oxide gas, that relaxes the patient without causing loss of consciousness. Analgesia can produce a state of euphoria or well-being and tends to lessen a patient's awareness of his surroundings. This can make him much more tolerant to the thought of discomfort. If needed, a local anesthetic can be used to temporarily remove feeling from the area being worked on.
One of the best known slogans is "You have nothing to fear but fear itself." Once a child's fear is overcome, he will probably be glad to get the care he needs to protect his dental health.

Retire rich on someone else's money.
Ours. And Uncle Sam's.
If you have the money, a Massbank IRA is just about the best thing that's happened to the American taxpayer since the red coats left town.
If you don't have the "lump sum" cash you need to open an IRA, we'd like to introduce you to the Massbank Systematic Investment Saving Program. It lets you use our money to put federal income tax deferments (Uncle Sam's money) to work for you, earning a tidy nestegg for your retirement.
Here's how it works.
If you qualify for credit with us, we'll loan you enough money to let you take the full $2,000* 1982 tax deferment available to you through an IRA savings program ...AND we'll loan you enough to start earning interest now on the maximum deferment available to you for 1983.
You can pay back the loan for both years on a systematic monthly installment schedule over 12 or 24 months. If you are in only an "average" tax bracket, your tax deferment savings for last year alone will easily exceed the cost of the loan for both years. In other words, you will already have made money by April 15.
But best of all, the money you borrow from us now stays in your Massbank IRA account, continuing to make money for you at top interest rates year after year...long after your initial start-up loan has been paid off.
If you start now, and stay with it through retirement, a Massbank IRA can indeed by the key to retiring rich while using as little of your own money as possible.
*Individual account

Wildcats in control

Wilmington's Michele DiGiralamo (30) and Debbie Bannon (14) have things pretty much under control in last week's tournament loss to Lincoln Sudbury. See story this page.

Lincoln-Sudbury eliminates Wildcats

Wilmington girls' most successful season ends, 49-44

The Wilmington High School girls varsity basketball team concluded a fine season last week with a 49-44 loss to Dual County co-champs Lincoln-Sudbury in a State Tournament played at the WHS gym. The heartbreaking loss marked the end of a record setting season for the Wildcats, who finished 17-4 overall, winning more games than any other girl's team in the school's history.

Coach Doug Anderson was extremely proud of this year's team, as they overcame injury and the tough Small School competition provided by Billerica, Methuen and arch-rival Tewksbury to qualify for the tournament for the first time in 15 years.

The game against Lincoln-Sudbury was a see-saw affair that saw the Wildcats grab a 26-18 halftime lead with a strong defensive effort. Seniors Karen Rowe and Debbie Bannon sparked the offense, while Anne Ryan, Gail Lombard and Michele DiGiralamo shutdown the Warriors inside.

The second half proved to be the Cats' downfall, as WHS went an ice-cold 2-14 from the floor in the third quarter and saw their lead dwindle to a point going into the last frame.

The final quarter shooting was no better, as no less than five one and one foul shooting situations were missed by the Small School champs. Lincoln-Sudbury center Sue Bertoft meanwhile caught fire and tossed in 11 fourth quarter points to rally the Lincoln team to its five point victory. Her inside scoring offset a fine performance by All MVC conference guard Karen Rowe who had 18 points, six assists, six rebounds and five steals. Miss Rowe was followed in scoring by Debbie Bannon's 10 and tri-captain Sue Gillespie's seven.

Senior center Michele DiGiralamo grabbed 13 rebounds before fouling out in the fourth quarter. The game was exciting, and though disappointing in its results, it was the culmination of a truly memorable season for the Wildcat girls.

Wilmington All-Stars

Senior guard Karen Rowe is an All Conference selection as voted by the coaches. Miss Rowe led the team in scoring and in assists for the second straight year. Karen is looking to Trinity, UConn and UMass as college choices. It is tri-captain Rowe's second All Conference berth.

Forward Susan Gillespie and center Michele DiGiralamo have been selected by the coaches as MVC Small School All Stars. Miss Gillespie is a 10 point per game scorer and has been accepted at Providence, St. Anselm's and Stonehill. Miss DiGirolamo led the team in rebounds and was a defensive standout on this year's 17-3 championship team. She is leaning toward Lafayette, UPenn and Tufts as college choices.

The All-Star game will be Tuesday, March 15, 6:30 p.m. at Lowell High School.

Senior standout

Wilmington senior Debbie Bannon (14) scores two of her first half points. Debbie was a driving defensive force behind a WHS team that built an eight point halftime lead.

First period barrage keys Wildcats

Wilmington's power line buries Northeast Regional, 8-5

Boston should bottle some of the power provided by the Wilmington High School hockey 'power line' and store it away in time for the next blackout.

Northeast Regional couldn't find a way to 'bottle-up' the Wildcat line of Jim Smith, Dennis Moran and Bob Curran, as the swift-skating trio accounted for seven goals and nine assists in their team's 8-5 clocking of Northeast Regional of Wakefield Sunday at Billerica's Tully Forum.

The victory shot coach Bill Cullen's MVHL Small School co-champs (16-4-1) into Division II Tournament quarterfinal action at Boston University Thursday (March 10) against Cohasset (13-5-3), a 3-1 winner over Lynnfield last week.

The Wildcats simply started too fast for the slower team from the Commonwealth Athletic Conference, scoring five goals in the opening eight minutes of play.

Smith pumped home three goals and had two assists, Curran scored two goals and chipped in with four assists and Moran wrapped Northeast up in a neat package with two goals and three helpers.

Fast start keys win

Regional made the mistake of not taking the body early Sunday, allowing Wilmington to skate freely throughout most of the first period.

Jim Smith started the barrage 1:08 into the contest on a powerplay rebound with Moran and all-star defenseman Ed Olson assisting.

Moran made it 2-0 at 4:15, his 24th goal to go along with 25 assists. The margin went to 3-0 at 6:25 when Smith pocketed a score off the crisp passing of linemates Moran and Curran.

Smith capped his first period hat trick with his second powerplay goal just over a minute later. Olson notched another assist on Smith's 10 foot backhander that beat Northeast goalie Kevin Fitzpatrick.

Advice from the best

Wildcat goaltender Chuck Webster (30) gets some advice along the bench from former Wilmington All-Star goaltender Rick Ballou during Sunday's 8-5 tournament victory over Northeast Regional.

Senior center Frank Newark sent Northeast into shellshock 32 seconds later when he made it 5-0 with assists to Kevin Smith and Dan Ward.

Northeast finally snapped the string when Joe Goulding scored for the CAC champs (14-0-0) at 9:13. A steal and a superb rush capped by a backhand shot gave Curran another goal and a 6-1 Wildcat cushion at 14:26. Now it was just a matter of a workmanlike effort by senior WHS netminder Chuck Webster over the final two periods.

Moran and Curran powered second period goals around a Northeast score to make it 8-2. A Northeast powerplay goal late in the middle period and a pair of meaningless scores in the final stanza provided for the final tally.

Cats have shooting edge

Wilmington enjoyed a wide shooting edge of 34-17, with Webster coming up with 12 saves and Fitzpatrick 26. WHS reserve goalie Don Gunn played the final 1:33 of the contest.

The junior Moran leads the Wildcats in scoring, while the Smith-Moran-Curran power line has 58 goals and 127 points. Moran is at 24-25-49, Smith 19-20-39 and Curran 15-24-39.

Northeast Regional completed its' season at 17-4-1 overall. The Wildcats now have a six game unbeaten streak (5-0-1) going into Thursday night's game.

Meeting

The Wilmington Youth Hockey Association will be holding its' annual meeting and election of officers Tuesday, March 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the South School on Chestnut Street.

All parents with children registered with the Wilmington Youth Hockey Association are urged to attend the meeting and vote.

Senior netminder backbones Redmen

Walsh saves, sends Redmen to Boston

They call him Steady Eddie, but for most of this 1983 hockey season, Tewksbury High School senior goaltender Ed Walsh has been a lot more than steady, he's been spectacular.

Throughout the MVHL regular season and now right into two Division II Tournament games, it has been Walsh who has prevented coach Joe Robillard's Redmen from getting blown out of the water early in victories over St Mary's (6-3) and Dom Savio (4-3, two overtimes).

Saturday's win over a very good team was arguably the best game played in Division II thus far, and it was the performance of Walsh and the late game heroics of his teammates that sent people away believing that maybe the many soccer players on this team (14) can avenge their tourney loss on the soccer pitch when the hockey club tangles with Duxbury tonight (March 9) in quarterfinal action at B.U's Walter Brown Arena.

Duxbury (16-5-1) set up the rematch of sorts with a 4-2 upset of Canton last week. The Redmen go into the game with a 14-4-1 slate.

Seluk sends TMHS to Boston

Junior Joe Seluk, another TMHS player enjoying a superb season, sent the Redmen to Boston with his goal at 3:16 of the second overtime Saturday at Salem State's O'Keefe Complex.

But it was the hard shot of senior wing Glen Fougere and the digging of senior Armind Dias that set up the game winning goal. Fougere fired the puck on net, Dias dug the ensuing save out of the corner to set up Seluk, and the Redmen did not waste a phenomenal effort by their senior goaltender.

Walsh made 52 saves as Dom Savio peppered the Tewksbury net with shots throughout the first two periods. Fortunately, the Spartans also misfired on a few wide open opportunities. Dom Savio outshot the Redmen 52-23.

Fougere, Dias and defenseman Tom Carpenito (his first of the year) notched the other TMHS goals. Mark Walsh and Seluk had the Redmen assists.

Savio scored two goals before the end of the second period. The Spartans scored the game tying goal with 4:19 left to play in the game, but at that point they could just as easily have led 7-3 if it were not for the play of Walsh.

Walsh's ability really came to the forefront when Dom Savio outshot Tewksbury 8-1 in the first overtime period. The

Wildcat freshmen

Wilmington's freshmen basketball squad, coached by Bill Simmons, came up with some fine play througout this past season. The team is pictured before their final game of the season at Tewksbury.

Redmen freshmen

Coach Leo DiRocco and his Tewksbury freshmen came on strong to finish at 6-9 this season, including a pair of victories over archrival Wilmington.

Redmen from page eight

TMHS goalie then came up with three spectacular stops in the the second OT, including a double-save that should be classified as a game saver.

With 5:25 left in the overtime, Walsh stopped a Savio slapshot, and in what was a fraction of a second but seemed like an eternity to TMHS fans, he swatted the disc away that had been lying in his crease. The shot and ensuing clear was Savio's best- and last- chance at a victory Saturday.

Redmen maul St. Mary's

Last week the Redmen advanced past an undermanned St. Mary's team with three third period goals after having not played really up to par through most of the first two periods.

Senior Boo (he scores goals - 16 to be exact), pocketed three, Seluk two and Dias one for the Redmen. Tremlett also had an assist, as did defenseman Kevin McKenna.

Walsh play was much like his play in a regular season contest- simply super. Eddie turned back 33 and kept the score knotted at 3-3 through two periods of play.

Harrison varsity football coach

Dr. Carol Sager, Wilmington superintendent of schools, has announced the appointment of Edward Harrison, 58 Aldrich Road, Wilmington to the position of head varsity football coach.

Mr. Harrison is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts and Wilmington High School and is presently a physical education teacher at WHS.

He is a former Wilmington High School two sport star with two varsity letters in football during their league championship years and two varsity letters in baseball.

He has been the Wilmington assistant varsity football coach for nine years, defensive coordinator for four years and served as acting head coach last year.

Girls All-Star game

A pair of seniors apiece from the Wilmington and Tewksbury High School girls' varsity basketball squads have been named to the Small School Stars that will tangle with the Large School Stars in the annual All-Star game March 15 at the Lowell High School Field House. Game time is 6:30 p.m., with the boys All-Star contest to follow at 8 p.m.

The Wilmington girls selected to the squad are guard Karen Rowe and guard-forward Susan Gillespie. The Tewksbury seniors participating are guard Sue Rheault and forward Mary Hill. Wilmington's Doug Anderson will coach the Small School squad.

Spurs clinch division title

In last week's highlights, the Clippers made it 10 in a row in the Senior East with a 66-40 victory over a gallant Cavaliers team. Tom Gallella and Jay Kelly paced the winners' offense with 12 and 10 points respectively. Buddy MacAllister and Bobby Ware played fine all-around games for the Clippers. John Marsh had 12 points for the Cavaliers, followed by Jeff Sands with 10. Bryan Cedorchuk and Brian Hanrahan had good games on defense for the Cavs.

Clippers 65 Bucks 30

The Clippers closed out a perfect 11-0 regular season by defeating the Bucks, 65-30. It was the Clippers' 19th win in a row over the past two seasons, a league record. Robby Aylward led the way for the Clippers with 12 points, followed by Jimmy Damouras with eight. Scott Macie and Chris LeBlanc came up with fine defensive efforts for the victors, as well as tossing in four points each. Ron Mueller was high scorer for the Bucks with 10 points, and Jon McLeod added 6.

Spurs defeat Colts, Lakers

The Spurs clinched the Senior West title with two victories last week. They defeated the Colts to sew up the division after previously beating their closes rivals, the Lakers, 79-56. Timmy Boudreau poured in 28 points to lead the Spurs in the triumph over the Lakers, followed by Rich Nowak with 21 and Bobby Briggs with 14. Charlie Gath tossed in 20 points to pace the Laker attack, while Billy Chandler had 12 and Barry Dunlevy chipped in with 10.

Bulls 75 Pacers 25

Joe Welch and Al Piccolo led the Bulls to a 75-25 win over the Pacers. Welch had 14 points and Piccolo 13, as the Bulls closed out the season by winning seven of their last eight games to finish second to the powerful Clippers in the Senior East. Timmy Quinn with 13 points and Jay Rideout with seven led the Pacers' attack, while Tom Bautolone and Don Murray played well on defense.

Other action

In other Senior games, the Hawks downed the Bucks, the Mavericks defeated the Colts, and the Rockets made it five wins in their last seven games by a score of 70-36 over the Blazers.

Nets 18 Celtics 17

In Junior Division action, the Nets remained in the hunt for the East Division title by nipping the Celtics, 18-17. Tommy Aylward was high man for the winners with seven points, followed by Jeff Wahl with five and Ben Nichols with four. Brett Simas and Tim Lightfoot were outstanding on defense for the Nets. Kyrie Stevens led the Celts with six points, Dan Whelton added four and Derek Leahy had three.

Jazz 33 Kings 28

A total team effort offensively and defensively, led by Robby Fardin, paved the way for the Jazz 33-28 overtime victory over the previously undefeated Kings.

Pistons 20 Knicks 18

A very stingy defense and some timely offense from Hugh Fitzpatrick and Pat Romano lifted the Pistons past the Knicks by a score of 20-18. The win allowed the Pistons to remain in first place in the East. Fitzpatrick was game high scorer with nine points, followed by Romano's seven. Jim Avery played a fine defensive game, while adding a critical hoop in the fourth period. Kevin Sullivan and John Miller led the Knicks in scoring with eight and four points respectively. Brian DeLuca and Joe Connolly played fine defensive games before fouling out in the fourth period.

Knicks 41 Nuggets 12

The Knicks rebounded from their tough loss to the Pistons with a solid win over the Nuggets by a score of 41-12. Keith Sullivan scored his 100th point of the season for the Knicks, as he tossed in 12. Brian DeLuca was high man for the winners with 15 points and he dished out a number of assists. Steve Cooke and John Miller played fine two-way basketball and scored six points apiece. Bob Marshall paced the Nuggets' attack with five points, followed by Ken Fowler with four. Pat Griffiths added three points and came up with a strong defensive effort.

Other action

In other Junior games, the Sonics beat the Nuggets, the Bullets downed the 76ers, and the Suns moved into a tie for first place in the West with the Kings by defeating the Warriors, 28-10.

Wilmington Little League

League needs umpires

Baseball is just around the corner, and Wilmington Little League officials are preparing for the new season.

Teams are in the process of being selected, and the continued improvement of Rotary Park has already begun. The league is always in need of volunteers to assist, and this year there is a vital need for umpires.

The league has received excellent cooperation from town officials and town departments and looks forward to financial assistance from the business community.

Little League is a non-profit organization operated by unpaid volunteers who are interested in the welfare of the youth of Wilmington. The league is solely funded by registration fees, contributions and fundraising campaigns.

In 1983 the opportunity to play and learn baseball will be shared by well over 600 children comprising about 44 teams. The

Scanlon, Curry complete super season

The Curry College varsity hockey team, sparked by the play of Wilmington's Steve Scanlon, wrapped up its' best season ever last week, ending at 16-5-1. In the final five days of the schedule, the team soundly defeated Plymouth State, the U.S. Naval Academy and Suffolk University.

In a year that was to be transitional, head coach Bill Stewart's charges lost just two of their final 16 games. In two seasons at the helm, Stewart's record is now 28-11-2.

The Colonels scored what was probably their biggest victory of the season against Navy, 5-0, Feb. 20. The Midshipmen came into the contest with a 14-1-2 record. It was the third shutout for freshman netminder Tim Downes of Hyannisport, who ended the season with a 13-5-1 record as the number one goaltender. Coach Stewart had high praises for Downes. "The way Timmy played told how the team played, and he made big save after big save."

In the final win against Suffolk, the Colonels came from behind by erupting for five second period goals after being down, 1-0, in the opening stanza. Sophomore Peter Camerlengo of Scituate led the way with a hat trick (he scored seven goals in the team's final three games), while freshman Rich Morahan of Belmont had two goals and an assist and junior Capt. Barry Parker of Hanover had a goal and two assists, giving him 101 career points. Freshman defenseman Tim Dolan of Billerica contributed three assists as the Colonels won, 8-4.

Steve Scanlon

Coach Stewart was especially pleased at the balanced play of his team. "Every player took charge at some point during the season," he said last week. Parker led the team in scoring for the third consecutive year as he registered 21 goals and 20 assists for 41 points. He was followed by Sean O'Connell, a freshman from Spring Valley, N.Y., and Morahan, each of whom had 35 points (O'Connell with 16-19 and Morahan, 13-22). Bob Gilbert of Walpole, also a freshman, had 11-16 for 27 points, while Camerlengo ended with 12-10 for 22 points. Junior Tom Hannon of Quincy, who had a hat trick against Skidmore, finished the season with 6-6 for 12 points. Mike Bufano, sophomore from Media, Pa. missed the last seven games with a broken foot, but still finished the season with eight goals and five assists.

The defense was outstanding this year and Coach Stewart commended the work of Dolan (2-12 for 14 points), freshman Joe Raycraft of Dennis, sophomore Scanlon of Wilmington and Ed Evans, sophomore from Beverly. Freshman Paul Rege of Milton also saw considerable action on defense line. Stewart was especially enthusiastic in his praise of Raycraft. "He was fabulous for us playing either defense or, if necessary, center."

The season included double wins ovr Plymouth State (4-3 and 8-3), Nichols (3-0 and 9-5), and M.I.T. (4-0 and 5-4). The Colonels' coach felt the key to the team's success this year was the early season scrimmages he had scheduled against stronger teams. "Those contests gave our players, especially the freshmen, such confidence, and it paid off once the season began," said Stewart.

Assistant Coach Sam Webb, who played hockey at Curry a decade ago, said the team "just got better and better as the season went along. They were really flying in those final games."

Wilmington police news

Arrests

Friday evening Officer Steve Parsons arrested George Kelley, 18, of Congress Street, Wilmington and charged him with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol and failing to keep to the right of the roadway. Kelley was bailed for a Monday court appearance.

Following investigation of an accident on Glen Road Sunday morning, Officer Pat King arrested Brian Sweetland, 23, of Washington Street, North Reading.

Sweetland was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol and failing to keep to the right of the roadway.

Two Tewksbury men were arrested by Officer King Sunday morning on liquor related charges. David Hennigan of Tilton Circle and Richard Kelly of Willow Street were charged with being minors, under age 20 possessing alcoholic beverages.

Both men were bailed for Tuesday court appearances.

Around 6 a.m. Tuesday Officer Mark Jepson and Sgt. Palmer arrested Robert Kullberg of Pasho Road, Billerica on charges of larceny from the Exxon station on Main Street and several motor vehicle violations. After investigation, Kullberg was charged with operating a motor vehicle after suspension of his license, attaching plates to the wrong car and driving an unregistered, uninsured vehicle. He appeared in Woburn Court Tuesday morning where he chose to have his case moved to the Lowell jury session.

Other activity

During the week ending March 8, Wilmington police officers responded to six accidents, 14 alarms, five disturbances and made five arrests. Officers assisted at three fires, investigated three larcenies, gave medical assistance twice and made six protective custody detentions.

Two incidents of suspicious activity were investigated along with two break and entries, three domestic problems were quieted, two complaints involving trailbikes and four traffic complaints were logged. Two liquor related complaints were taken, two persons were reported missing, two stolen vehicles were recovered and three incidents of vandalism are being investigated.

Public meetings this week

Monday, March 14: 7:30 p.m., Selectmen, Council for the Arts, Board of Registrars, all at the town hall.

Tuesday, March 15: 7:30 p.m., Finance Committee at the town hall, Planning Board at the town hall annex.

Wednesday, March 16: 7:30 p.m., Finance Committee at the town hall.

• Special town meeting

to be sold.

In Wilmington's case it seems that an amendment which the finance committee prudently added to the motion is the villain. In some way that addition has changed the meaning enough for bond counsel to ask questions. The same idea may be the villain in the other towns.

Wilmington's chairman, Rocco DePasquale, was very reluctant to call the selectmen's meeting. He and the town manager had been discussing the problem for about 10 days. Finally, on Friday afternoon, after discussion with town counsel, it was decided action had to be taken, and that promptly.

The town counsel was with the selectmen for all phases of the discussion Friday up to, and including the vote to call the meeting. It seems there will be no legal questions this time.

Wilmington senior topics

Programs for seniors

Many programs are offered to the Wilmington senior citizens. The arts and crafts sessions - these people work hard while at the same time enjoying themselves. In doing so they make new friends and learn new crafts. This group of seniors is also financially productive. Money earned by the arts and crafts seniors is used to supplement the Council on Aging budget.

Articles which cannot be purchased by the budget are bought by the arts and crafts committee. All kitchen items such as the coffee pots, kettles, pots, pans, brooms, mops, soaps, towels, table covers, slip covers, vacuum cleaners, sewing machint, tv, stereo, adding machine and all repairs and supplies for the copy machine and many more items have all been purchesed by the arts and crafts seniors.

Those sitting home alone are urged to join this active and productive group.

Exercise program

There is also an exercise program oriented to older persons, held at the Knights of Columbus Hall every Monday from 10 to 11 a.m. Every person needs a certain amount of exercuse, but the older person should make sure they get as much exercise as they can. After retiring, a person seems to relax too much. As a result fat begins to form around organs which can become a serious health hazard. The Council on Aging makes exercise classes available.

Other exercise programs available to keep seniors healthy are swimming at Shawsheen Tech Friday mornings; walking, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, weather permitting; bowling Wednesday afternoon at the Candlepin Lanes in North Reading and dancing Friday afternoon at the Drop-in Center.

Income tax help income tax help is available at the Drop-in Center by appointment. Call 657-7595 or 658-2258 Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Lynnfield lady

Spending 41 days in India

By STEVAN-ADELE MORLEY

I first wrote about Jean Laier of Lynnfield in December, 1981. At that time I quoted a poem that she had written. I would like to recall a few lines of that poem now: "I see the mountain across the road. The fields on either side; And I think of the river we'll explore some day soon; I put my faith in the Higher Powers, And I let them stay...."

A year ago Jean was living in Hirim, Maine — growing her own food, conducting workshops, giving lectures, traveling in small circles. Since then, she has journeyed abroad twice, climbed distant mountains, crossed foreign roads, prayed in far-away fields, explored yon rivers...and her faith continues to "remain in the Higher Powers...even more so."

Jean belongs to a group called the Love Project — based in California. She met the group's leaders there in 1976 at an International World Festival.

She explains the group's purpose: "The Love Project is a way of life to persons who want to be more loving and who seek alternatives to passive, negative, violent living...it's a way for Seekers to link energies in a universal chain of caring...forged with the strength of each individual...a person-to-person love."

Jean was about to embark on a sojourn to Wales and neighboring countries (with a New Spiritual Frontiers Fellowship group) when she first learned about a 41 day trip planned for India — through a Love Project newsletter.

"I knew I was prepared to take such a trip," she explains. "I had been directed to read books about India...teachers I knew there had sent me a sari to wear 'when you visit us.' I knew that Spirit was preparing me for this special journey..."

With abounding faith and "a gift of five dollars from my Aunt Grace to put down as a deposit" — the required deposit was $500.00 — "I left for Wales." She

ROVING — Dan Ferullo

Just saying 'Thank You'

A reader from Wakefield recently made the following observations:

I stepped up to the bar at the Copley Hotel a couple of Friday nights ago and ordered a Chambord and soda, As Bocce, a female bartender with short dark hair and a small cunning face, made my drink, I glimpsed around the old famous wood and brass bar. It was busy with energetic but toned-down activity: lots of soft conversations and tinkling glasses. In the corner jazz pianist Dave McKenna was playing. The bartender, a shoo-in for Stockard Channing's stand-in, brought my drink.

I asked if she'd charge it to my tab, and casually replied with a "thank you."

To my immediate left, a blonde woman, whom I took for about fifty-five-years-old but whom nature had been very kind to, turned from the impeccably dressed silver-haired man she was having a chat with and said out-of-the-blue, "You know, those are two words you don't hear very much anymore."

At first I wasn't sure what she meant. Then after quickly mulling over what I'd just said to Bocce, I realized she was referring to the "thank you."

"I guess I don't think about saying them. I just say them," I told her, feeling somewhat awkward, as if I should apologize for something. Goodness knew what.

She apparently picked up on my uneasiness, and said, "That's perfectly all right. At least you use them. 'Thank you' and 'please.' I call them the 'elusive words.' People often find it difficult to say them. But I always try to remember to say them, because I know how much I hate it when someone doesn't remember to use them with me."

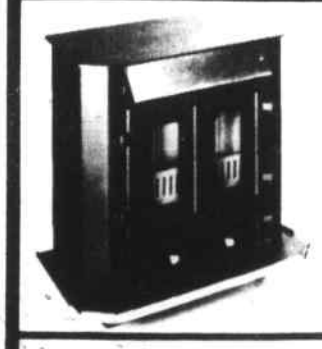

I suspected that this attractive woman was guilty of tipping one too many glasses of white wine.

Special nutritional counseling offered at Health Center

In recognition of National Nutrition Month in March, the Regional Health Center in Wilmington is sponsoring special programs and expanded nutrition counseling office hours.

Individual nutrition counseling office hours are held expanding into the evening. Also, computerized nutrition assessments with individual interpretations will be offered, by appointment only.

Those with questions and concerns about eating disorders, diets and vitamins can have questions answered by a nutritionist-registered dietitian.

Many insurance companies cover nutrition office visits, especially when the visit is associated with a medical problem such as anemia, high blood pressure or diabetes.

A program of "Eating Disorders: Understanding Anorexia Nervosa, Bulimia and Compulsive Overeating" will be held on Thursday, March 10 at 7:30 p.m. featuring John H. Heckler, Ph.D., psychologist; David S. Salomon, M.D., adolescent medicine specialist and Elvira Q. Johnson, R.D., M.S., nutrition services coordinator.

Anorexia is the medical and psychological condition of self-starvation that has been receiving much attention in the media lately. Singer Karen Carpenter's death is linked to the disorder and Cherry Boone O'Neill, daughter of singer Pat Boone, has recovered from the eating disorder.

There is treatment available for anorexics and bulimics, those who suffer from binge-purge-vomit syndrome. According to an Anorexia Aid Society official, these disorders are "ways for females (predominantly) to handle an apparently inherent obsession with food and shape."

Recent reports indicate about 280,000 women between the ages of 12 and 25 suffer from anorexia in the United States. Death may come from this form of malnourishment; or lead to irregular heartbeats, which can lead to heart failure. These victims are often depressed and therefore are more prone to suicide.

The Eating Disorder program is free and open to the public.

A special evening "Feeding Your Child" course will be held on Monday, March 28 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. for working parents and child care providers of one to five-year-olds.

Marilyn Pasierb, R.D., M.S., nutritionist, will discuss problems of the fussy eater (pre-schoolers) and nutrition for the young school-age child, focusing on the importance of eating a variety of foods.

There is a $4 fee for this program, including materials and pre-registration is required.

On Wednesdays, March 16 and 23, a two-part workshop on "Youth Sports: A Workshop for Coaches and Parents" will be held. Ginny C. Janeiro, registered physical therapist and certified athletic trainer, will discuss "Conditioning and Preventing Athletic Injuries;" and Elvira Q. Johnson will speak on "Eat to Win: Nutrition for Young Athletes."

Handouts will be given out at both sessions and a question and answer period will follow both lectures.

These programs will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. and pre-registration is required by calling 657-3910, ext. 567

Austin Prep plans Open House

Austin Preparatory School will administer its annual spring entrance exam for prospective students on Saturday, March 19, at 8:30 A.M. Parents of eighth and ninth grade boys who would like to apply for admission for September may call the school to register for the exam. The test will be given at the school, which is located at 101 Willow Street, Reading, near the junction of Routes 93 and 128.

Austin Prep is a modern secondary school dedicated to meeting the academic, cultural, and athletic needs of boys in the average to superior range of intellectual ability. Boys who have successfully completed eight years of elementary school are eligible for admission to the ninth grade. Students who wish to enter grade 10 may also apply. As a Catholic educational institution Austin teaches and follows Christian principles, but admits as students boys of all faiths.

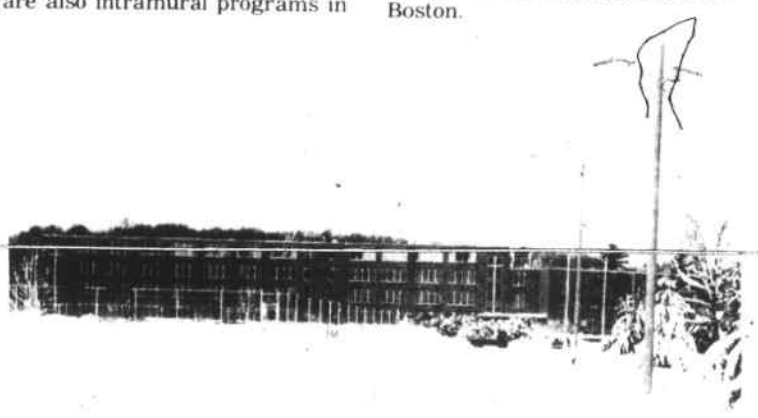

The school was founded in 1961 by the Order of St. Augustine, which had been requested by Richard Cardinal Cushing to provide high quality Catholic secondary education for the North Shore area. The Augustinian Fathers also conduct Merrimack College and Villanova University.

Austin Prep offers its students a college preparatory curriculum. Each year about 95 percent of its senior class enters college immediately upon graduation. The school's phase system, based on the idea that the curriculum should fit the needs and abilities of the individual student, allows Austin to offer courses on different ability levels, and to provide a wide variety of electives to complement required courses. Upperclassmen may take college-level Advanced Placement courses in American History, European History, Calculus, Chemistry, English, and several foreign languages. Entering freshmen have a choice of five languages: Russian, Latin, Italian, French and Spanish. Among the special features of the curriculum are courses in computer programming and oceanography.

A wide variety of extra-curricular activities supplements Austin's academic program by providing social and cultural enrichment. There are active organizations for drama, chess, weightlifting, journalism, foreign languages and student government. The school's Foreign Language Department sponsors field trips to Quebec, Paris, Italy, Spain and Russia.

The school sponsors interscholastic athletic teams in almost every major sport. Austin is represented in league play by teams in football, soccer, baseball, hockey, ski racing, basketball, track, cross country, golf, and tennis. These sports are offered on the junior varsity and varsity level, and there are freshman teams in many sports. There are also intramural programs in softball, basketball and lacrosse.

Bus transportation to Austin Prep is available from Greater Lowell, Greater Lawrence and many other communities north of Boston.

David Boulay appointed as 'Fuel Service Dealer'

David Boulay of Stoneham, Ma., has been appointed a "Full Service Dealer" by the Homelite Division of Textron Inc., for the service and repair of Homelite and Jacobson equipment, it was announced by proprietor of Beaver Tree Experts.

To be eligible as a "Full Service Dealer," the company must meet specific standards set by Homelite and Jacobson. The criteria ensures that customers will receive the highest quality repair work and servicing of Homelite's chain saws, string trimmers, snow blowers and lawn mowers.

The select designation means that Beaver Sales has agreed to perform all warranty repair work on Homelite and Jacobson products regardless of where purchased; that service personnel have attended specified training schools and dealer meetings, and at least one Homelite trained mechanic is on duty at all times.

David Boulay points out that a "Full Service Dealer" also must have adequate parts inventory, a well-equipped shop and labor rates approved by Homelite.

Beaver Sales & Service is located at 33A Montvale Ave., Stoneham, Ma. 02180. Telephone 438-2814.

Spending 41 busy days in far away India

JEAN COMMUNICATED WELL with the children of India. Here she is seen with a group of "street children." Children presented her with small gifts of flowers and tricks. One group in an ashram sang and danced for her.

says she could only deal with one pilgrimage at a time, that she demonstrated her faith by flowing with what was at hand.

Without being told whether a friend of hers from Virginia was actually going on the India trip, Jean requested her as a roommate. "On my birthday I was notified that Jane could be. Intuition led me. Actually, the group was almost ready to leave for the East when I learned that Jane had just made up her mind to go."

Though Jean hadn't raised the entire amount of money she would need for such a trip, she made preparations — packed the right clothes, got all necessary shots, etc. and, at the last minute, all needed funds arrived and she left for India.

"We did a lot of traveling by bus and jeep through the Indian countryside. We saw fascinating villages and had many personal exchanges with the people, especially children. I bathed in the Ganges with other pilgrims, visited countless ashrams, sat and rested before the Taj Mahal at sunrise, explored the 'Resplendent Island' which is what Sri Lanka means...."

She says "Kandy, Sri Lanka's most beautiful town, is where we watched the elephants being bathed...and I rode one...

"We met for an hour with the Prime Minister of India, Indira Gandhi. We asked her questions and she obliged with answers...

"Gandhi explained that a Family Planning Program is going in 'patches.' She said women are for it but the majority of men are against it. Not so much because of religious practices but for fear of becoming a minority group. The area it's working best in is Karela — that's because the area has a higher percentage of educated people. She said they need more doctors doing Family Planning Program work...women in India only go to female doctors and it's only been several years since the women have given up Purdah (means women placed in seclusion only seen by members of their family: otherwise they wear veils or go out in veiled carriages.) Gandhi explained how the program affects middle-class women more than lower class women...."

Jean says one of the highlights of her trip was to visit Gandigram — a community based on Gandhi principals where people are learning trades, skills, etc. to promote self-sufficiency. The land there was divided among 50 communities, being supportive of one another."

"In this particular community," Jean says, "they make soap, weave rugs, grow grains...we saw horrendous poverty in big cities. Villages are more self-sufficient as they have more land to grow food on. People in smaller villages appear to be very happy...India, which has only been an independent country for 30 years, and is one-third the size of this country, with three times the people, has a major difficulty — there are about 35 major languages spoken in India!"

Jean says the meeting with Gandhi was on a one-to-one basis, was warm and friendly, and one could feel the love within the woman.

"In Bodhgaya we visited the temple and the Bodahi tree under which the great Buddha received enlightenment."

Another highlight of the trip for Jean was visiting all the children in the many orphanages that the famed Mother Theresa has dedicated her life to. "Every orphan in the home at Calcutta has found a home and been adopted...oh, they need clothes desperately. And they need polio vaccine! How I wish people around here would send these much needed items to Mother Theresa's children..."

"Something I'll never forget was the meeting we had with Vimala Thakar. She had worked closely with Mahatma Gandhi for years. She spoke with us about the Gandhi movement and concerns for social actions...she will be here in the Boston area sometime this year. You shouldn't miss her visit and what she has to say."

Jean says, "By the end of our mission, our group of 33 pilgrims felt we had accomplished our purpose...Seekers had linked energies in a universal chain of caring — forged with the strength and uniqueness of each individual. It was indeed a trip of person-to-person love."

On one of the flights within India, Jean sat beside a member of the India Parliament — Alexander Warjin — who asked her where she was going next after Darjeeling.

"I honestly don't know," Jean replied with a smile. "You see, I live totally in the moment."

Then, on the way home, Jean expressed her only disappointment. She had not seen one rainbow on the entire trip. For the past few years she has taught workshops called "Understanding the Rainbow Circle."

She says, "I happened to look out the plane window...and lo, I saw a beautiful rainbow circle...the loveliest I've ever seen...it was breathtakingly lovely...and right in the middle of the triple circle was a perfect shadow of the plane we were flying in..."

Jean is busy at this writing preparing a slide presentation of her trip. This writer was fortunate to have a private showing.

As she explains, and I can't help but believe her, "Surely that rainbow circle with a shadow of our plane in it was God's sign of His wonderful blessing of our trip...the journey into self...don't you think so?"

From S-1

Just using the words "Thank You"

But as she continued she began to make sense, a mild alcoholic stupor notwithstanding.

She said, "I've been sitting at this bar for a couple of hours, and for the fun of it I've been listening to people order drinks from Bocce. I've discovered that very few people take the time to use the elusive words."

I admitted that I had never given it much thought. And I probably wouldn't give it much thought after we finished our little talk. We exchanged a few more pleasantries, then I moved on.

For some inexplicable reason, I kept being reminded of my encounter with this woman the next day. I found myself unconsciously listening for people to use those elusive words. At the supermarket. At the newstand. At the gas station. At the bank. My research was far from scientific, but I did come to the same conclusion as that woman at the Copley. Very few people took the time to say the elusive words. A typical example of what I saw and overheard took place as I ate supper by myself at the bar of a local restaurant.

A middle-aged man, with bristly hair streaked with light and dark shades of grey and wearing a red plaid flannel shirt, sat next to me with a young woman who looked like she could have been his daughter. They ordered a couple of draught beers from a female bartender, who was friendly and efficient. After they were served their beers, this guy waited to make eye contact with another bartender, a young male this time, who was walking by and held up some money.

"I need cigarette money," the guy in the flannel shirt said curtly.

The bartender took the money — a one dollar bill — and went to the cash register. As he made change, he turned part way around and said, "The machine takes a dollar twenty-five. Do you have the extra quarter, or do you need two in change?"

It seemed like a reasonable question, and the bartender was very courteous in the way he asked it. But this guy in the flannel shirt apparently thought the query was a nuisance to him, because his expression turned to a scowl. He held up another dollar bill and waited for the bartender to take it. When the bartender handed him his eight quarters he didn't so much as nod appreciatively.

Now, you readers may feel I'm being overly picayune, but I don't think it would have killed the guy in the flannel shirt to have said the elusive words. He probably wouldn't have had that scowl on his face, if he had. And they surely would have made the bartender feel better. I know I would have felt better, if I just heard the guy use them. I'm sure bartenders are used to rude people, so they're perhaps immune to embarrassment. But I know I felt embarrassed just sitting next to a person who acted as though the world owed him some kind of special treatment.

As I said, my research was very unscientific, so there is no way I can say people like that guy in the flannel shirt are part of a category who don't use the elusive words. That same evening, I saw sloppily dressed, hippy-types who were extremely courteous to the bartenders, and there were the very properly dressed older couples that definitely needed a course in Dale Carnegie techniques. Or at least some veal parmesan spilled on them.

One generalization I can make from my unscientific research is that people who don't use the elusive words appear to be less happy than those who do use them. This observation was confirmed when I happened to leave the restaurant at the same time as that guy in the flannel shirt. He had a bumper sticker on his car that read: "I don't love any person, place or thing."

My only thought was, please stay out of my way, thank you.

FANCY THAT!

Thanks to some scientific ingenuity, industrial wastes of the future can be turned into soil conditioners to prevent the "dust bowls" that swept America's farmlands during the years of the Great Depression. The technique is already in use in Israel, where it was developed. Some 40 percent of the conditioners come from wastes in the paper industry.

The Israeli scientists report that the new conditioners have potential for use on roadsides, parking lots, playgrounds and gardens. Piles of temporarily stored materials such as clay and coal dust can be sprayed with the conditioner for preservation without fear of pollution.

PATCHWORK CLASSES

Patchwork quilting is currently one of the most popular revival crafts. It is easy, creative, and rewarding. If you had always thought of stitching your very own quilt, but didn't know how to start, now is the time to sign up for a class with Wendy Kinzler of Reading. Small friendly groups will be formed for the beginner, as well as for those who are more advanced, on Monday and Wednesday mornings and evenings. Phone 944-2707 for details and sign up. Classes begin on March 14.

EQUINE ART

An art and photography contest with the horse as its theme, will be one of the features of Massachusetts Equine Expo — '83 to be held in Northampton April 16 and 17.

Amateur artists of all ages and experience are invited to participate in this judged show which will encompass a broad spectrum of catagories and medias.

The Massachusetts Equine Expo is a joint effort of the Massachusetts Horsemen's Council in cooperation with Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture and the Cooperative Extension, 4-H, University of Massachusetts.

For catagory list and entry form write: Massachusetts Equine Expo — '83, Massachusetts Building, Avenue of States, West Springfield, Ma. 01089.

BUSINESS FOR ARTISTS

Massachusetts College of Art invites interested members of the public to an April 9 workshop on Small Business Management. Morton Godine, former Dean of Administration at the College, will give practical and professional guidance to artists and craftsmen who plan to start or join a small business in the art or craft fields. Workshops run from 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. and concentrate on key management functions such as business finance and ration analysis for profit-planning. The workshop will be held at 364 Brookline Ave. There is a $50 program fee and you must register by March 28. For more information call Professional and Continuing Education at Massachusetts College of Art at 731-2340.

SCOUT SKILLSHOW

Four Scout units have confirmed their plans and theme for this years Skillshow, according to Tom Hynes (862-1408), Program Chairman. The show, "Catch the Scouting Spirit", is scheduled for March 26 at the Lexington Armory.

Pack 105 through their program coordinator, Dom Musto, is planning a Carnival atmosphere as their theme. Jim Palmer said that the boys of Pack 522 will be exhibiting a variety of Gifts and Party Ideas.

Troup 103, per spokesman Mike Vecchi, is scheduling a display on Wilderness Survival. Jim DiNitto is coordinating Troop 511 with their fishing theme and displays.

Highlight of the Show will be a District Pinewood Derby run-off. This all day event will feature Cubs from all the Packs as they compete for the title of "District Champion". Special trophies are planned and will be awarded to the winners.

Those Burlington units who have announced their intention to participate in the Show, but have yet to firm up their theme, should immediately contact Tom Hynes for program confirmation.

Tickets for the Show are presently being sold by the Scouts. Community support is appreciated and participation at the Lexington Armory to "Catch the Scouting Spirit" is encouraged.

Getting to the Expo is simplicity itself — the Sheraton Exhibit Center is right there at Exit 28 on Interstate 495 in the town of Boxborough, Mass., just four miles south of Route 2. Parking is free, and adult admission is only $3.75. Children under 12 get in for $1.50.

Show hours are especially convenient: it's open from 1:30 P.M. to 10:00 P.M. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday; from 10:00 A.M. to 9:00 P.M. on Saturday and from 11:00 A.M. to 7:00 P.M. on Sunday.

WELLNESS WORKSHOP

"Wellness Education — Toward Optimal Health" is a four-part program scheduled for four consecutive Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 beginning March 10.

The workshop is being sponsored by Choate-Symmes Health Services, Inc., and will take place at the Choate Hospital Division, 21 Warren Avenue, Woburn.

Its purpose is to introduce the individual to concepts of wellness and health maintenance and to foster self-awareness and self-responsibility.

Leaders are Gail Steinkohl Levy and Joan D. Kritter, both registered nurses, who will provide information and strategies on stress management and relaxation techniques, as well as an overview of nutrition and fitness. The content of the course will focus on skills for the individual to use in daily living and in the work setting.

Registration is limited. To reserve a space, please send a check for $15.00 (to cover costs) made payable to Choate-Symmes Health Services, Inc., attention: Mary Seymour, R.N., Director of Education.

SOIL TESTING

The Suburban Experiment Station in Waltham has announced an increase in the cost of having soil tested. The fee for each complete test, (analysis of up to 18 nutrients), will now be $5.00, and there will now be a charge of $1.00 for each pH test. Payments are made by check only. From April until September, pH testing will be free at the Middlesex County Extension Service in Concord.

A soil test can be helpful in starting a new lawn or garden and for finding the cause of "problem" conditions. Regular tests are not necessary if a sound program of lime and fertilizer applications are carried out.

Soil bags for complete testing may be purchased at your local County Extension Service Office. Checks should be made payable to: Cooperative Extension Service Activities Fund.

A revised instruction sheet for taking soil samples is available at the Middlesex County Extension Service, 105 Everett Street, Concord, Ma. 01742. Telephone numbers are 369-4845 or 862-2500.

AEROBIC DANCE

A Jazzerobics Dance Program will be held at the Lawrence Memorial Hospital of Medford, School of Nursing on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:00 P.M. to 7:00 P.M. starting Tuesday, April 5 and running for 8 weeks, 16 sessions.

Jazzerobics is a cardiovascular exercise program that uses a jazz style dance to bring the participant through a fast-paced hour of warm-up, sit-ups, flexibility exercises, dancing and cool down relaxation techniques. This particular program is conducted by Health Fit Consultants of Wellesley, Ma.

The program fee is $45.00 per person for 16 sessions. Registration is limited. For more informatin, call the LMH Public Relations Department at 396-9250, ext. 1633.

CPR COURSES OFFERED

Choate-Symmes Health Services, Inc., will offer a Basic Rescue CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) course in March. The nine-hour course will be held at the Symmes Hospital Division in Arlington on Mondays, March 14, 21 and 28 from 7 to 10 p.m.

Basic life support techniques included in the classes are artificial respiration (mouth-to-mouth breathing) and artificial circulation (chest compressions) for use in treating victims of heart attack, drowning, choking, and other life threatening accidents. Students are also taught to recognize early symptoms of heart attack, how to prevent complications, how to reassure the victim and methods of obtaining emergency help.

When an accident of illness occurs in which a victim's heart stops or breathing ceases, he must be resuscitated within 4 to 6 minutes in order to insure recovery without brain damage. Artificial respiration restores oxygen to the lungs and artificial circulation pumps oxygenated blood to the brain. CPR training is especially recommended to families of people with heart problems.

The technique for relieving an obstructed airway is also taught in the basic rescue course. Performance practice in these and the other aspects of CPR are stressed in the Basic Rescue course.

The American Heart Association, through which students are certified in CPR recommends that those who have received training in CPR refresh their skills every year. A recertification class is scheduled at Symmes on Wednesday, March 30, from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Pre-registration is required for both the Basic Rescue and recertification courses. Fee for Basic Rescue is $12.50 and for recertification, $5.

For information on registration, contact Symmes Hospital Community Relations Office, 646-1500, Ext. 1443.

Using coal ashes in the garden

With so many homeowners converting to coal heat, disposal of the ashes may be a problem. Coal ashes can be used in the home garden, but with caution. Coal ashes contain nitrogen and phosphorus but in combinations that will not break down in the soil. The ashes contain some potassium, calcium, magnesium and sulfur. All of these to some extent will be released in the soil and supply plants with nutrients.

The coarse particles of ash (size of coarse sand) have a pH of about six which is slightly acidic in reaction. Fly ash (size of very fine sand) has a pH value of 6.5 or higher, giving some value as liming material. It would be a good idea to have your soil tested before applying coal ashes.

Coal ash may contain Boron and other soluble salts. These can be a problem to salt sensitive plants such as beans, celery, radish, cucumber, squash, peas and small fruits.

When applying coal ash large chunks of unburned coal should be removed and used in the compost. This will aid in air movement. Apply only as much coal ash as equals five percent of your soil volume at any one time. This means if you till your garden six inches, do not apply more than one third of coal ash on top of the soil before tillling.

Coal ash piled near areas of water runoff can cause problems to nearby plants. The coal ash contains boron and toxic metals which the plant absorbs and can be passed on to animals that consume the plants.

If you burn coal, use caution in disposing of the ashes. It may be best to send them to your local landfill rather than use them in your garden! For further information, contact the Middlesex County Extension Service, 105 Everett Street, Concord, Ma. 01742.

The Shamrock

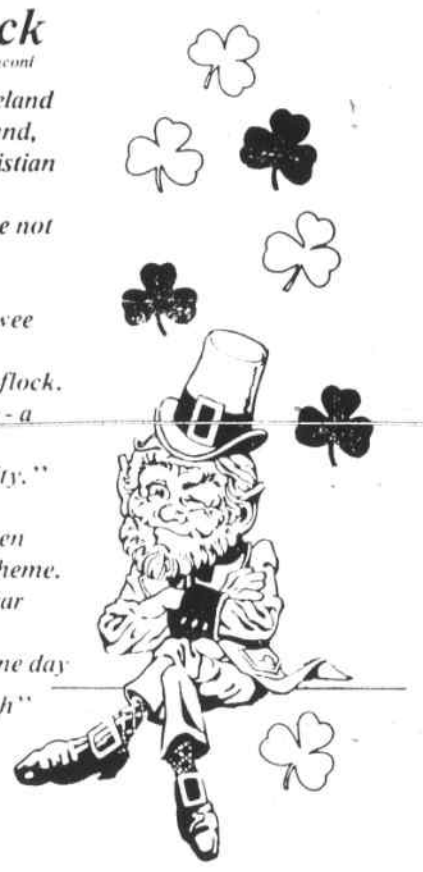

By Anthony O'Mancont

In the Emerald Hills of Ireland
On the river banks so grand,
St. Patrick spread the Christian Faith
And sowed the seed of love not hate.

From fields he picked a wee Shamrock,
Then held it high above his flock.
"Three leaves - one stem - a mystery
But from it learn the Trinity."

A clover in a field of green
Tells more to me than any theme.
They grow and thrive near Galway Bay
Where a bit of Heaven fell one day

"Erin Go Bragh"

I HEARD HIM SAY

I heard him say the other day,
That he'd call today.
And didn't lie.
Because if he did I'd die.

I heard him say before I hung up the phone,
That as long as I'm around, he'll never be alone.
I think he loves me but I really don't know.
I love him too and I want it to show.

I heard him say when we talked before,
"I can't wait to see you so I can get to know you more."
I dream about him every night.
I wish so much that I could hold him tight.

I heard him say why we talk so much.
Because he never wants us to lose touch
We never thought of it from the start
But we're just close friends deep at heart.

HIGH—WIRE ACT

The scene that I watched from my kitchen just now
Was a lone squirrel feeding upon a high bough...
He seemed to be nibbling the twigs at their tips,
From each sleeping bud he was taking small nips...
Although the branch swayed back and forth 'way up there,
He seemed unafraid thirty feet in the air;
Were I in his place I would feel like a king...
Surveying my realm and then dreaming of spring...

Help for the elderly through Mystic Valley Elder Services

Mystic Valley Elder Services helps elders stay in their homes. This social service agency works with elders in Tri-City and Eastern Middlesex communities. Mystic Valley's case managers, in partnership with their clients, determine client needs and assign specific services to help with life management tasks including cleaning, meal preparation and transportation.

One special case manager-client partnership involves Mystic Valley case manager, Betty Knox and her client Sophie Jacolev, 92, of Malden. To most Americans, the word "revolution" brings to mind Minutemen and muskets. It is history. But to Mrs. Jacolev, the Russian Revolution of 1917 is a vivid memory.

Mrs. Jacolev grew up in Lebou, Latvia. She married a Russian Naval Officer at the outbreak of World War I. "Lebou was bombed by the Germans. They made guns and wire there, so the Germans bombed us from aeroplanes." Mrs. Jacolev gave birth to her son "under bombardment. We were in the cellar and the bombs were falling all around."

The Germans invaded and Mrs. Jacolev and her son fled first to Lithuania, then to Finland, both then under Russian control. Mrs. Jacolev was in Petrograd, the Russian Capital, the day Rasputin was assassinated. She remembers Petrograd when the revolution began. "People were like animals without a government. They stole from the rich shops. Everywhere there were men with guns, men dragging guns, men with guns over their shoulders." Mrs. Jacolev's husband was commanding a ship with the Baltic fleet. She decided to seek refuge with his family in distant Simbirsk.

Says Mrs. Jacolev, "I was with my little son, I had a first-class ticket but, at the station, they told me there were no classes. All the trains were for soldiers to bring the troops to the front. A young student pitied me with my baby and he helped me buy a ticket saying I was a soldier's wife off to see my husband before he left to go fight. The student boosted us into the train through a window."

"The soldiers were everywhere, even sleeping in the toilets. I remember my son was dressed in a swanskin coat. We had sent for the coat from Siberia. I had a little chamberpot for my son. When the soldiers bought milk when the train stopped in the villages they had no cups. The soldiers wanted to use the chamberpot to drink from. I told them what it was but they said they had drunk from worse than that. I can still see the soldiers passing that little blue and white pot, drinking from it, all through the train. Somehow it was finally returned to me, clean."

The reunited Jacolev family eventually emigrated to America, Sophie Jacolev has lived in Malden fifty years. After her husband's death, she worked as a seamstress, fitting wedding gowns at a shop on Pleasant Street. Her hobbies included sewing doll clothes and baking traditional Slavic pastries.

Increasingly serious physical problems made simple tasks impossible for Sophie Jacolev. This once self-reliant woman was no longer able to manage her home or prepare meals without assistance. Mrs. Jacolev called Mystic Valley Elder Services for help. Case manager Betty Knox responded to her call. Betty, a Reading resident and graduate of Tufts College, has helped Mrs. Jacolev in the transition between self-sufficiency and the acceptance of in-home services.

Says Betty, "Mrs. Jacolev is a delightful woman. She has wonderful spirit. She knows I'm available when problems arise. I'm glad to help in any way I can so that she can remain at home as independently as possible." Betty visits Mrs. Jacolev regularly. Together they check to see that the current plan for services meets Mrs. Jacolev's changing needs. Mrs. Jacolev looks forward to Betty's visits. "She's such a pleasant person, very sympathetic," Mrs. Jacolev says of Betty.

"Case management is the key to effective delivery of community-based services to elders." According to Marcia Heist, manager of Mystic Valley Elders Services' Home Care Department, "clients like Sophie Jacolev know that they have needs. They are faced with a bewildering system of social and health services. Often elders do not know what is available, who pays or how to apply. The partnership between a client who knows his-her needs and abilities and the professional case manager who knows the complicated service systems may help to avoid a premature nursing home placement. Most importantly, the case manager-client partnership assists Mystic Valley Elder Services' 2000 plus elderly clients to live with dignity in their communities, near family, friends and familiar surroundings.

Sophie Jacolev is proof positive of the important partnership between Mystic Valley case manager and Mystic Valley client.

Volunteers needed for new program

Volunteers who have had experience with children — especially with special needs children — are needed for the Early Intervention Program Developmental School held at the Congregational Church, Reading, according to Jacquelyn S. Deegan, MSN, executive director, Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East. The visiting nurses are sponsors of the Early Intervention Program.

The rewarding volunteer opportunity at the Developmental School in Reading is especially suitable for retired teachers or mothers whose children are grown, she states.

The school volunteers will work with the early childhood educator, the classroom teacher and assistant teacher with individual programs designed to meet the children's needs.

Candidates should ask for Joan Connuck, early childhood educator, at 438-3770.

Eligible for the Early Intervention Program and its Developmental School are children from the communities of Melrose, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Wilmington, and Woburn. The program is offered without charge to families

Future agricultural restrictions

The purchase of "agricultural restrictions" in Massachusetts is saving key agricultural land for local food production, according to "Massachusetts Agriculture 1982," the annual report and statistical summary of the state Department of Food and Agriculture released this week.

"Farmland that otherwise would have been lost to development is now in the hands of younger farmers so that production will continue," states the 72-page annual publication.

Production statistics in the bulletin showed cash receipts from farm marketings up from $296,864,000 in 1980 to a high of $321,540,000 in 1981. Receipts were up or held steady in 18 of the 25 major farm categories.

Preliminary estimates for the 1982 crop year show increases in dairy and apple production, and the largest cranberry crop on record. The severe rains and flooding that inundated Massachusetts during June will surely have an effect, however, on total 1982 crop production, according to state Food and Agriculture Commissioner Frederic Winthrop, Jr.

The farm summary notes that there were some 46,000 dairy cows in the Bay State, and that milk production per cow continued to increase, as well as production of cheese, milk and milk sherbet. Sheep and lamb inventory numbers have been increasing since 1979; 1982 figures showed 8,000 head.

The 72-page annual report also summarizes the activities of the following divisions and bureaus of the state Department of Food and Agriculture: Agricultural Preservation Restriction Program, Land Use, Animal Health, Dairying and Animal Husbandry, Fairs, Thoroughbred and Standardbred Programs, Markets, Milk Marketing.

And sowed the seed of love not hate.

From fields he picked a wee Shamrock,
Then held it high above his flock.
"Three leaves - one stem - a mystery
But from it learn the Trinity."

A clover in a field of green
Tells more to me than any theme.
They grow and thrive near Galway Bay
Where a bit of Heaven fell one day

"Erin Go Bragh"

I HEARD HIM SAY

I heard him say the other day,
That he'd call today.
And didn't lie.
Because if he did I'd die.

I heard him say before I hung up the phone,
That as long as I'm around, he'll never be alone.
I think he loves me but I really don't know.
I love him too and I want it to show.

I heard him say when we talked before,
"I can't wait to see you so I can get to know you more."
I dream about him every night.
I wish so much that I could hold him tight.

I heard him say why we talk so much.
Because he never wants us to lose touch
We never thought of it from the start
But we're just close friends deep at heart.

HIGH—WIRE ACT

The scene that I watched from my kitchen just now
Was a lone squirrel feeding upon a high bough...
He seemed to be nibbling the twigs at their tips,
From each sleeping bud he was taking small nips...
Although the branch swayed back and forth 'way up there,
He seemed unafraid thirty feet in the air;
Were I in his place I would feel like a king...
Surveying my realm and then dreaming of spring...

Help for the elderly through Mystic Valley Elder Services

Mystic Valley Elder Services helps elders stay in their homes. This social service agency works with elders in Tri-City and Eastern Middlesex communities. Mystic Valley's case managers, in partnership with their clients, determine client needs and assign specific services to help with life management tasks including cleaning, meal preparation and transportation.

One special case manager-client partnership involves Mystic Valley case manager, Betty Knox and her client Sophie Jacolev, 92, of Malden. To most Americans, the word "revolution" brings to mind Minutemen and muskets. It is history. But to Mrs. Jacolev, the Russian Revolution of 1917 is a vivid memory.

Mrs. Jacolev grew up in Lebou, Latvia. She married a Russian Naval Officer at the outbreak of World War I. "Lebou was bombed by the Germans. They made guns and wire there, so the Germans bombed us from aeroplanes." Mrs. Jacolev gave birth to her son "under bombardment. We were in the cellar and the bombs were falling all around."

The Germans invaded and Mrs. Jacolev and her son fled first to Lithuania, then to Finland, both then under Russian control. Mrs. Jacolev was in Petrograd, the Russian Capital, the day Rasputin was assassinated. She remembers Petrograd when the revolution began. "People were like animals without a government. They stole from the rich shops. Everywhere there were men with guns, men dragging guns, men with guns over their shoulders." Mrs. Jacolev's husband was commanding a ship with the Baltic fleet. She decided to seek refuge with his family in distant Simbirsk.

Says Mrs. Jacolev, "I was with my little son, I had a first-class ticket but, at the station, they told me there were no classes. All the trains were for soldiers to bring the troops to the front. A young student pitied me with my baby and he helped me buy a ticket saying I was a soldier's wife off to see my husband before he left to go fight. The student boosted us into the train through a window."

"The soldiers were everywhere, even sleeping in the toilets. I remember my son was dressed in a swanskin coat. We had sent for the coat from Siberia. I had a little chamberpot for my son. When the soldiers bought milk when the train stopped in the villages they had no cups. The soldiers wanted to use the chamberpot to drink from. I told them what it was but they said they had drunk from worse than that. I can still see the soldiers passing that little blue and white pot, drinking from it, all through the train. Somehow it was finally returned to me, clean."

The reunited Jacolev family eventually emigrated to America, Sophie Jacolev has lived in Malden fifty years. After her husband's death, she worked as a seamstress, fitting wedding gowns at a shop on Pleasant Street. Her hobbies included sewing doll clothes and baking traditional Slavic pastries.

Increasingly serious physical problems made simple tasks impossible for Sophie Jacolev. This once self-reliant woman was no longer able to manage her home or prepare meals without assistance. Mrs. Jacolev called Mystic Valley Elder Services for help. Case manager Betty Knox responded to her call. Betty, a Reading resident and graduate of Tufts College, has helped Mrs. Jacolev in the transition between self-sufficiency and the acceptance of in-home services.

Says Betty, "Mrs. Jacolev is a delightful woman. She has wonderful spirit. She knows I'm available when problems arise. I'm glad to help in any way I can so that she can remain at home as independently as possible." Betty visits Mrs. Jacolev regularly. Together they check to see that the current plan for services meets Mrs. Jacolev's changing needs. Mrs. Jacolev looks forward to Betty's visits. "She's such a pleasant person, very sympathetic," Mrs. Jacolev says of Betty.

"Case management is the key to effective delivery of community-based services to elders." According to Marcia Heist, manager of Mystic Valley Elders Services' Home Care Department, "clients like Sophie Jacolev know that they have needs. They are faced with a bewildering system of social and health services. Often elders do not know what is available, who pays or how to apply. The partnership between a client who knows his-her needs and abilities and the professional case manager who knows the complicated service systems may help to avoid a premature nursing home placement. Most importantly, the case manager-client partnership assists Mystic Valley Elder Services' 2000 plus elderly clients to live with dignity in their communities, near family, friends and familiar surroundings.

Sophie Jacolev is proof positive of the important partnership between Mystic Valley case manager and Mystic Valley client.

Volunteers needed for new program

Volunteers who have had experience with children — especially with special needs children — are needed for the Early Intervention Program Developmental School held at the Congregational Church, Reading, according to Jacquelyn S. Deegan, MSN, executive director, Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East. The visiting nurses are sponsors of the Early Intervention Program.

The rewarding volunteer opportunity at the Developmental School in Reading is especially suitable for retired teachers or mothers whose children are grown, she states.

The school volunteers will work with the early childhood educator, the classroom teacher and assistant teacher with individual programs designed to meet the children's needs.

Candidates should ask for Joan Connuck, early childhood educator, at 438-3770.

Eligible for the Early Intervention Program and its Developmental School are children from the communities of Melrose, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Wilmington, and Woburn. The program is offered without charge to families

Future agricultural restrictions

The purchase of "agricultural restrictions" in Massachusetts is saving key agricultural land for local food production, according to "Massachusetts Agriculture 1982," the annual report and statistical summary of the state Department of Food and Agriculture released this week.

"Farmland that otherwise would have been lost to development is now in the hands of younger farmers so that production will continue," states the 72-page annual publication.

Production statistics in the bulletin showed cash receipts from farm marketings up from $296,864,000 in 1980 to a high of $321,540,000 in 1981. Receipts were up or held steady in 18 of the 25 major farm categories.

Preliminary estimates for the 1982 crop year show increases in dairy and apple production, and the largest cranberry crop on record. The severe rains and flooding that inundated Massachusetts during June will surely have an effect, however, on total 1982 crop production, according to state Food and Agriculture Commissioner Frederic Winthrop, Jr.

The farm summary notes that there were some 46,000 dairy cows in the Bay State, and that milk production per cow continued to increase, as well as production of cheese, milk and milk sherbet. Sheep and lamb inventory numbers have been increasing since 1979; 1982 figures showed 8,000 head.

The 72-page annual report also summarizes the activities of the following divisions and bureaus of the state Department of Food and Agriculture: Agricultural Preservation Restriction Program, Land Use, Animal Health, Dairying and Animal Husbandry, Fairs, Thoroughbred and Standardbred Programs, Markets, Milk Marketing.

Spring fever season

Coming Attractions

By William Pacino

By William Pacino

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society's 112th annual Flower Show, entitled "The Sensuous Garden", marks the official opening of Boston's new Bayside Expo Center on Saturday, March 12 and will run through Sunday, March 20th.

Welcoming visitors at the entrance will be a spectacular display of orchids mounted in a grove of golden Acacia trees. These trees, native to Australia, have been owned and nurtured by the Stone Family of Marion since 1926.

Another of the Show's highlights will be the "Pool Within a Pool" being exhibited by Paradise Gardens, Inc. of Whitman. The center pool of this stunning display will feature three lighted fountains in a bursting star pattern. This inner pool will be surrounded by another pool containing multi-colored Koi (exotic Japanese carp) and goldfish as well as other aquatic plants.

Bayside Expo Center is easily accessible by car from Exit 17 or Exit 18 off the Southeast Expressway. Or take the MBTA bus or Red Line to Columbia Station.

Maple Sugar means Spring has arrived

It's maple sugar time at Mass. Audubon sanctuaries, a sure sign that Spring is on its way. During March, three Mass. Audubon sanctuaries, all less than 45 minutes from Boston, will offer maple sugaring programs to the public. Staff naturalists will show participants how to tap maple trees, collect the sap, and boil it down to make maple syrup.

Bring your sweet tooth to the Blue Hills Trailside Museum in Milton on the weekends of March 12 & 13th or 19th & 20th between 10 AM to 4 PM. Enjoy tapping a tree as well as a slide show called "Sugaring Off."

North of Boston, the Ipswich River Sanctuary in Topsfield sponsors its annual maple sugar operation on March 12th & 13th. Please call Ipswich River at 887-9264 for reservations.

Moose Hill Sanctuary in Sharon, offers " Sugarbush Walks" which includes a cross cut saw demonstration and a discussion of woodland management in addition to the tapping of maple trees. The Moose Hill program will be held on the first three weekends in March, on Saturdays at 10 AM and 2 PM and on Sundays at 2 PM only.

Please note that reservations are required at some programs. There is an admission charge for these programs. For more information, call Mass. Audubon at 259-9500.

Bike Vermont

"If you can ride a bicycle, you can do it and enjoy it in Vermont." These encouraging words come from Bob McElwain, president of Bike Vermont, a company that has been organizing and leading bicycle touring trips in Vermont for the last seven years.

Meals and lodging at comfortable and friendly country inns are a highlight of the tours. Also important is a support van on every tour, to carry luggage and be available for assistance.

The groups are small, the tone informal and two experienced leaders accompany each trip. All levels of bikers are welcomed. Each cyclist goes at his or her own pace, and no one is ever made to feel that they are holding anyone else up.

Both weekend and inn-to-inn midweek tours are offered, from mid-May through the spectacular foliage season in October. Bicycle rentals are available. Since the groups are small, reservations are required. A brochure is available by writing to Bike Vermont, P.O. Box 75F, Grafton, Vt. 05146, or calling (802) 843-2259.

Whale watch

Some people describe it as a "spiritual experience." Others have said "its's the best way to have a great time while supporting a good cause". Whatever the perspective, everyone who has gone agress that whale watching off the New England coast is an exiting adventure.

Greenpeace New England will open its 1983 Whale Watch season on April 16th. For the fourth consecutive year, Greenpeace will take thousands of people to Stellwagen Bank, a summer feeding ground for the migrating humpback, right, finback and minke whales, as well as for many species of dolphins, porpoises and seabirds.

Trips will be offered from Provincetown aboard the Dolphin Fleet and from Plymouth on the Captain John & Son.

Due to their 95% success rate for spotting whales, Greenpeace has gradually built a reputation for providing exciting and memorable excursions. All trips are narrated by a marine - biologist who is also available to answer questions, making these trips appropriate for school groups and family outings.

Tickets and more information are available by writing to Greenpeace Whale Watch, 286 Congress Street, Boston 02210 or by calling 542-8134.

Printmaking explored

"Exploring the Print", a two-part exhibition at State Street Bank and Trust Company and The Art Instutute of Boston will delve into the mysteries of the art of printmaking.

Part I is an historically-oriented exhibit, drawing on the works of such masters as Delacroix, Cassatt, Gauguin and Avery to explain aquatint, mezzotint, dryprint and other processes of fine art printmaking. The show runs from March 4 to May 31 in State Street's Concourse Art Gallery, 225 Franklin Street, Boston.

Part II of "Exploring the Print", an exhibition of contemporary printmakers, opens March 30 in the Art Institute's Gallery East.

Visitors are welcome at the Concourse Art Gallery Monday through Friday from 9 to 5. For more information, call 262-1223.

Karate championships

On Saturday, April 9th at 8 PM, the 1983 KRANE New England Open Karate Championships will be held in Shapiro Gymnasium at Brandeis University, 415 South St. in Waltham. Top rated U.S. and Canadian Black Belt Competitors, along with Breaking Expert, Richard Byrne, will participate in New England Point Karate Title fights, Kata Competition, Weapons Competition and Musical Forms Competition.

Tickets are available at Ticketron, the Brandeis University Student Service Bureau and at the door. For further information, call 567-4989.

From flowers to whales, from bicycling to karate, COMING ATTRACTIONS has something for everyone. If you know of an event of interest to all, write, care of this local newspaper and tell us all about it. We are busy and hope to re main that way.

Bread - a symbol of love and security

Bread has been the symbol of goodness, warmth and security since long before Biblical times. It is the most exciting food a person can prepare, according to Nancy C. Stutzman, Extension Home Economist for the Middlesex County Extension Service.

Home-baked bread evokes happy memories of the past — the smell of a happy kitchen. This ancient homemaking skill has been brought up to date by new techniques — retaining its basic warmth, yet restyled by modern methods.

Breads should be eaten everyday to keep the body in good health — whether as breakfast toast or muffins, the base of a tasty sandwich at lunch or to enhance a hearty soup or salad at dinner.

Whole-grain breads — whole wheat, oatmeal, cornmeal, rye — lend satiety value to a meal — at the cost of very few calories — 50 — 60 per average slice. When the bread is homemade, one can savor the flavor without the butter or spread that add the extra calories. Stutzman says that this satiety value is important to keep one from picking on snacks, that are often high in calories.

Homemade breads can be quick breads, leavened by baking powder or yeast breads. Yeast breads can be quick with only one rising, batter breads and those that develop a fine texture with 2 or 3 risings, and the shapes of bread are endless — thin bread sticks, round rye "boules," braids, french-style baquettes, rolls in many shapes and breads that take the form of the pans in which they were baked.

Bread baking is satisfying in the preparation, presentation and the eating! Bread is basic to good health. For more information on baking yeast breads, contact Nancy C. Stutzman, Middlesex County Extension Service, 105 Everett St., Concord, Ma. 01742.

Red Cross reorganizes Mass Bay area

The American Red Cross has completed the first major reorganization of its chapter structure in the Massachusetts Bay area. As a result of the reorganization, the activities of 19 Red Cross chapters, involving 73 cities and towns, are now being coordinated through a central headquarters in Boston.

Samuel L. Batcheler, Jr., of Brookline, volunteer chairman and a chief architect of the reorganization of the American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay said: "The new setup will improve services to the 2.5 million people in the area served by the Red Cross.

"We found that if we were going to continue to give the people of this area high quality services at a cost we could afford, we were going to have to make some changes," Mr. Batchelder said. "Our goal is to get greater participation by volunteers in leadership and the delivery of services in the field, and to make our volunteers and staff more accountable for their performance."

Mr. Batcheler said that the need for reorganization of the Red Cross structure here became apparent five years ago when questions began to be heard about the lack of efficiency and uniformity of services being supplied in some areas. These questions were being raised by the United Way of Massachusetts Bay, which supplies Red Cross here with most of its funds (the Massachusetts Bay Red Cross is the largest recipient of United Way funds), and by the American Red Cross National headquarters in Washington, D.C.

The major concerns included the inefficiency of separate Red Cross chapters trying to raise funds and provide effective services at a reasonable cost.

Interim plans were implemented by local volunteers in 1979, involving a voluntary confederation of chapters grouped into seven regions. In May, 1982, a reorganization plan was approved by the Board of Governors of the National Red Cross and is now being implemented. Under the plan, a central executive unit was created to oversee operations and administration throughout the area. The unit is headed by a volunteer board of directors representing the Massachusetts Bay area and each region.

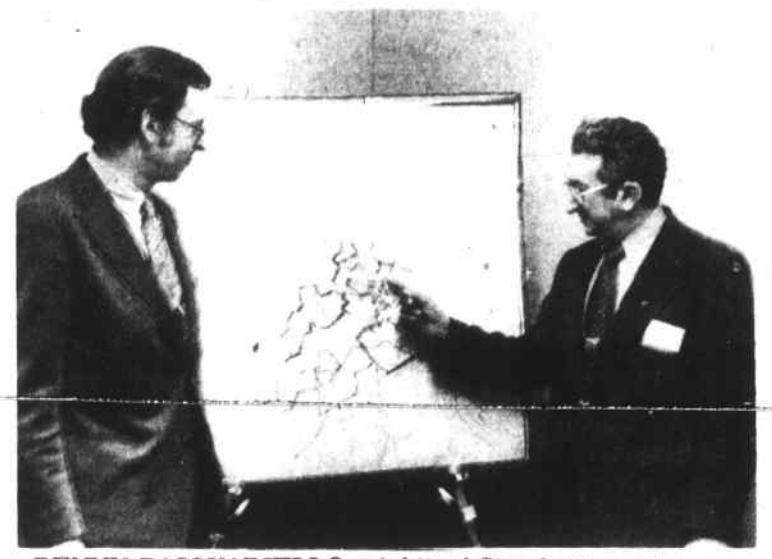

The regions are: the North Shore Region which includes the Greater Lynn, Peabody, Salem, and Greater Danvers Chapters; Eastern Middlesex Region which includes the Malden, Reading, Melrose, Stoneham, Wakefield and Winchester Chapters; Central Middlesex Region which includes Minuteman and Waltham Chapters; West Suburban Region which includes the West Suburban and Weston Chapters; South Shore Region whic includes South Shore, Cohasset, and Scituate Chapters; and two single chapter regions, Cambridge and Greater Boston.

Each region has a volunteer board of directors overseeing service delivery and operations within the region, a regional manager, and staff at the regional level to assist the volunteers with delivery of service on a day-to-day basis. In addition, service specialists and support staff at the Mass. Bay level have responsibility for their activities throughout the area, working with Massachusetts Bay volunteer committees.

"While much progress has been made," Mr. Batchelder said, "we still have a long way to go to implement our long-range plan which was put together over a 12-month period in 1981 and 1982.

"The direction the Red Cross must take over the next few years is clear and will certainly benefit the thousands of Massachusetts Bay citizens who directly receive our services each year. Our ability to provide service primarily through unpaid volunteers with relatively little staff support makes Red Cross unique in its ability to maximize the community benefits derived from its share of the charitable dollar. We intend to improve our record as a major provider of a variety of social services within the Mass. Bay area and to maintain a flexible and responsive attitude to changing community needs. We know we have a big job ahead of us, but we are confident that the people will support our efforts," Mr. Batchelder said.

Services provided by the Massachusetts Bay Red Cross include disaster relief, nursing and health services, service to military families and safety services. There are a total of 18,770 volunteers and 111 full and part-time staff personnel serving the area.

Benny is active both on the Stoneham Chapter and Region Board of Directors, and serves as Disaster Zone Chairman for Stoneham and Winchester.

Get a dog, not an analyst

That dog in your life, whether a mutt of undeterminated ancestry or a pedigreed aristocrat who wins ribbons, probably is more to you than you think. A companion of the kids and a devoted, unquestioning worshipper of you, sure. But your dog may also serve you better than a psychoanalyst.

"Pet owners probably don't realize that their pets can actually help improve their mental and physical health — and even extend their lives," Redbook magazine reports in the February issue, and quotes Gerald J. Westbrook, a research assistant at the Andrus Gerontology Center at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

"Pets — especially dogs — can offer protection, companionship and unconditional love. They are non-threatening, non-judgmental, open, welcoming, accepting and attentive."

Unlike spouses or parents, says Westbrook, dogs don't talk back, criticize or issue commands. They give people something to care about and be responsible for, and make them feel needed and wanted.

Dog-owners know that they combat loneliness. People walking dogs talk to each other and frequently become friends. Dogs provide a sense of purpose, help to enhance self-esteem and self-control, and generally relieve stress.

Erika Friedmann, Ph.D., professor of health science at Brooklyn College and lecturer at the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine, notes that people who are "depressed by the loss of a relative or friend can learn to love others again by first learning to love and care for a pet."

And a study at the University of Maryland suggests that pets help to bring families closer together, reducing conflict and tension and increasing play among family members. They give comfort to children and the elderly alike and have been known to play an important role in helping the mentally distressed.

COOKING CORNER

Economical Italian sausage, whether hot or sweet, can form the basis of a hearty meal that serves a family of four well. Serve over beds of fluffy rice for another "centsible" touch.

SAUSAGES ITALIANO

- 4 Italian sausages (hot or sweet)
- Water
- 1 tablespoon olive or vegetable oil
- 1 green pepper, cut in thin strips
- 1 medium onion, cut in 1/4-inch slices
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 cup chicken broth
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1/4 cup dry white wine
- 2 to 3 cups hot cooked rice

In a medium skillet cover and cook sausages in a small amount of boiling water for 6 minutes. Pour off water. Add oil and saute gently until sausages begin to brown. Add green pepper, onion, and garlic to skillet. Cook, covered, about 10 minutes. Add chicken broth and cornstarch dissolved in wine. Cook, stirring, until clear and thickened—2 to 3 minutes. Serve over beds of fluffy rice. Makes 4 servings.

Coupon, refund convention planned

Have you ever found yourself in a grocery store checkout wondering how a "coupon shopper" has just saved more money than she's spent? With today's economy and the struggle to stretch our supermarket dollar, refunders and refunding is becoming more familiar. Many people enjoy watching their weekly deductions come off their food bill. To some refunders, refunding is just a hobby thay pays, to others it's becoming a necessity for household budgets. Everyone wants to save money at the checkout — but not everyone knows what refunding is or how to refund.

A refund is an incentive given to the comsumer by the manufacturer for buying certain products. This incentive is usually a cash refund, a "free store" coupon or cents off coupons for future purchases. Refunding is the shopping system of regularly turning boxtops, labels and specified proof of purchases into cashing in on these offers. Refunding is not just on "junk" food items. Refunders receive savings on items that you buy regularly. Savings on fresh meat, milk, eggs, bread, produce and many other items are also refund related. There are offers on new products. Manufacturers want you to try their products, but more offers are on products that you are currently buying weekly. Refunders save money and do not buy products they don't normally use. During recent years, with inflation, refunds have become an increasingly popular way for manufacturers to attract attention to their products and keep the consumer using the same product.

Refunding has it's work, like any hobby it takes time, but no money, organization and a system is necessary. Refunders subscribe to monthly publications called "refund bulletins." There are over 100 nationally published bulletins, subscription rates vary, the average is $12 for one year or seven dollars for six months.

Bulletins include many helpful items. They list hundreds of new offers monthly. Offers usually range from one to five dollars but have been as high as $20. Plus there are the offers for free products and high value coupons.

Depending on the bulletin (and some are better than others) there is usually a section listing addresses to write for a form that you have not obtained. Forms are usually found in the grocery store or in newspapers. If the offer requires an "official" refund form, you cannot participate in the offer unless you have the form. Do not write directly to the manufacturer sponsoring the promotion, as they usually will not mail you the form.

There are many offers that do not require a form, a good bulletin will indicate which offers these are.

Bulletins also advertise national refund conventions. In the current issue of "Moneytalk" a bulletin, there are over fifty conventions listed nationally during the next four months. One of these listed is a convention that will be held locally on April 16th.

The Eastern Massachusetts Refunder's Convention will be held in Reading, the meeting place is conveniently located right off Route 93.

This convention will have a beginner's workshop. The beginners will learn how to save money at the grocery store, what refund's are, how to refund and the difference between refunding and couponing. Everyone will be given copies of refunding bulletins to take home and put to immediate use. There will also be speakers and company representatives attending, along with many experienced refunders willing to share experience and knowledge.

The past convention had attendance from every New England state plus New York and New Jersey. There will be many interesting door prizes. The favorites include bags of groceries, postage and envelopes, and also yearly subscriptions to refund bulletins. There will also be raffles and a contest.

This year's contest will be the "shopping spree" cash register tape contest. The winners will be the smart shopper that has saved the most money and has the longest register tape for one grocery order. You will see many register tapes over six feet long with hundreds of dollars worth of groceries purchased only for a few dollars.

Anyone interested in attending the April 16th convention who needs additional information, please send a "long self-addressed stamped envelope" to Brenda VanHorn, 53 Mt. Vernon St., Reading, Mass., 01867.

Advanced registration is required and should be received before March 21st to guarantee you a seat. There is a registration fee.

There's lots of it

Watch out for credit card fraud

A "Banking Tip" from the Massachusetts Bankers Association — When the times are tough, as they are now, your credit card becomes that much more valuable to thieves and other untrustworthy characters. It is certainly of greater value than cash to the common thief, who is smart enough to know to use it immediately after it is stolen, before it can be reported.

According to Herbert E. Dunnington, MBA Chairman, credit card fraud has soared throughout the country. "It's becoming increasingly important for credit card holders to be especially careful with their credit card, and aware of the ways it can be misused."

Unfortunately, it is often difficult to prevent theft of a credit card. If your card is lost or stolen, report it to the bank or company that issued your card immediately. If you've lost a VISA card, American Express card etc. and it is after work hours, obtain their 800 telephone number from the operator to report the stolen card. Once reported, stolen card numbers show up quickly in computer files. Call your bank the next day to inform them of the stolen card. Under federal law, you are not responsible for any charges to your credit card account if you have reported it missing before the purchases were made.

Another suggestion is to keep all your credit cards in something other than your wallet. Thieves are often only interested in the wallet, assuming that is where most people keep their credit cards.

Merchants are becoming more wary of fraudulent use of credit cards, and will often check its validity against a computer file.

Some banks are now offering a service which will handle immediate reporting and cancellation of all a customer's stolen credit cards. Ask your bank about this service.

Here are some of the ways a credit card use can prevent frauds:

Watch the transaction being made when using your credit card to make a purchase. A dishonest employee can run off duplicate impressions of your card on blank sales checks — unless you catch him at it.

Make sure the amount on the sales slip is the correct one before signing.

Save receipts and compare them with your monthly bill. Report at once any charges you did not make.

Cut up credit cards you are no longer using, even if they are expired. Oftentimes, employees forget to check the expiration date.

Be especially careful when using your credit card to make purchases over the phone, Dunnington warns. Never give your account number unless you plan on charging the purchase to your credit card account. If you plan on paying cash upon delivery, or being billed later for the amount, for example, it is not necessary to give your credit card account number.

Ask a telephone solicitor to send you some information on the product or service if you are unfamiliar with the company. If you are suspicious, consult your local consumer protection agency.

"Owning a credit card is not only convenient, it is also a privilege," states Dunnington.

Macomber Farm

Name the lamb

CAN YOU NAME THIS BABY LAMB? It was born last week at Macomber Farm in Framingham. As the proud mother looks on, Macomber employee Debbie Ellis gives it some loving human care.

Don't let the Blizzard of '83 fool you; spring is nearly here. A baby lamb, traditionally a sign of spring, was born last week at Macomber Farm which proves it.

At Macomber Farm, people and animals share the good life. The 46-acre site in Framingham, Massachusetts, owned and operated by the Mass. SPCA, is the home for domestic animals on loan from farms all over New England. But Macomber is a lot more than a farm. Exhibits, computer games, hands-on demonstrations, special events, recreational facilities, picnic tables, refreshments, a gift shop and more make Macomber a perfect place to spend a memorable day with the family.

Macomber's third season begins April first, and they are already hard at work developing new activities and exhibits for learning about animals and for just plain fun. By opening day, the staff of Macomber Farm needs a name for the farm's newest addition. For that reason, Macomber is offering a free family membership in the Mass. SPCA to the adult or child who submits the best name. The membership entitles unlimited free visits to the farm, a 10 percent discount on gift items, a free subscription to Animals magazine and more.

Send your entry, before March 15, 1983, to "Name the Lamb", Mass. SPCA, Attn: David Legasse, 450 Salem End Road, Framingham Center, Ma. 01701. Help Macomber find a name for the lamb; it'll make spring come just that much quicker

How to prevent painted brick from peeling

Q We are cleaning up an old cemetery which has red clay bricks numbering the lots. After cleaning the bricks, we used a yellow paint made for street markings. Now the paint has peeled off the brick. What kind of paint will stick to the bricks?

Waldo E. Austin
Parsons, Kan.

A First, allow clean bricks to dry very, very thoroughly. It may take a couple of weeks of good drying weather, since red clay bricks readily absorb water and are reluctant to release it.

Now, prime clean, dry bricks with a "surface conditioner" available in paint stores. It is a long-oil, slow drying, deep penetrating primer. It soaks well into the brick, providing a foundation for a good acrylic finish coat.

Color? To suit your fancy and the décor required.

Retired Men's Club has slide presentation

At the meeting of the Retired Men's Club of Wakefield on February 23 at the First Parish Congregational Church, First Vice President Ralph Wentzel introduced the speaker of the day, Mr. Henry Y. Porter of Reading.

For sixty-one years Mr. Porter collected several thousand pictures, many of which are autographed. He conceived the idea of having pictures of certain celebrities transferred to slides and then developed the narratives concerning them into talks to be delivered to interested clubs and schools.

The Henry Y. Porter Collection is one of the largest collections of its kind in existence and represents a prodigious effort on his part. The collected pictures number approximately 15,000 and are classified into three major areas: music, theatre, and politics.

The pictures covered the entire life of Lincoln, a great giant in American history. His parents, children of the rugged frontier, were married in 1806 in Elizabethtown, Kentucky and Abe was born on February 12, 1809.

Because of difficulty of making a living from the soil, the family moved frequently. In Indiana, where they lived for fourteen years, Lincoln's mother died.

His father later married a widow with three children. For a time the family lived in a small town near Springfield, Illinois and in 1831 they moved to a new community called New Salem where Abe worked in a store.

During a trip to New Orleans Abe saw slaves being sold at auction the same as cattle and was so horrified he made up his mind that if he ever had an opportunity to do something to eliminate slavery he would do so.

It was in New Salem Lincoln was elected to the legislature as a member of the Whig Party. The Lincoln-Douglas debate resulted in Lincoln's gaining a great reputation as a leader. In 1860 when he visited New York City he had his picture taken by Matthew Brady, the great photographer of the period. This photograph, which was widely distributed by the Republican National Committee, caused Abraham Lincoln to become known to many people and in 1860 he was nominated by the new Republican Party for the presidency.

Among the slides were scenes of Washington at the time of Lincoln's arrival in the city when Washington was very unattractive and a very unhealthy place to live. The dome of the Capitol was not completed at the time although for twenty years efforts had been made to have Congress appropriate the required money.

Because the Southern members of Congress felt that war over the emancipation isue was inevitable and that when the South won the war a new Capitol would be established in the South, they refused to support an appropriation for completion of the Capitol.

Eventually Lincoln was successful in having Congress provide the necessary funds and by the time he took his second oath of office in 1865 the Capitol was finally completed.

Matthew Brady took many pictures covering life in Washington and in the White House. One slide showed the stump of the Washington monument which was finally completed in 1888. Many slides detailed the lives and activities of prominent Washington politicians, statesmen, generals, and Civil War battles during Lincoln's term at the White House.

It was interesting to learn the Henry Y. Porter Collection will one day become part of Tufts University Library where it will be available to the public for many years to come.

President Coughlan opened the meeting by announcing the attendance was 266. Visitors were: Jim Butcher, Lynnfield; James Collyer, Malden; Victor Nordstrom, Reading; and Walter Paskowsky, Reading. Membership cards were given to three new members. Second Vice President Les Merrifield read the name of 21 members who had birthdays during the past two weeks and 16 members were serenaded to "Happy Birthday".

John Griffin read the names of those who were sick at home, in hospitals or in nursing homes. A moment of silence was made to respect the three members who had died in the past few weeks.

Gus Seavey conducted the door prize which was won by Winston (Bud) Thomas. Paul Richmond's "thoughts for the day" were amusing as usual. Paul does extensive research for these "thoughts", which pertain to our daily living.

Jim Buckley, Chairman of the Safety Committee, gave his report on the organization and also announced Brad Waterman had been added to the committee.

Henry Murphy stated there has been great interest shown for the Golf and Stamp Clubs. He also announced the annual Club breakfast would be held in April. Activities of the Bowling group were covered by Dick Taylor. Upcoming trips for the Club members and their guests were covered by Bob Sproul. On March 8, Fine Arts Museum; March 16, Flower Show; May 31, trip to Heritage Plantation at Sandwich on Cape Cod.

Small birds and pets

Canaries, parakeets and other small birds make excellent pets, especially for the elderly, since they require little space and effort, and are relatively easy to care for. The best way to prevent a bird from becoming ill, or infested by pests, is to keep your feathered friend well fed, clean and adequately housed.

Select a bird cage that is large enough to provide exercise room, and place it out of reach of other pets and away from drafts. Provide clean cage lining, fresh gravel, seed and water on a daily basis. Gravel is an essential addition to the diet of seed-eating birds. The cage should also be completely cleaned and disinfected at least once a week.

Symptoms of illness in a bird include diarrhea, constipation, breathing difficulty and lethargy. If your pet bird shows any of these symptoms, first check for logical causes. Has the bird been getting proper food and fresh water regularly? Check the seed dish carefully — it's easy to mistake empty seed hulls for a full supply of whole seeds. Diarrhea can be caused by too many fresh greens as extra treats. It follows that constipation can be cured by adding some lettuce or celery greens to the diet.

Birds moult regularly, but excessive moulting or persistent bald patches could be a sign of illness or parasites. If you suspect mites or lice, use one of the many commercial sprays or powders available, following directions very carefully.

If you suspect a respiratory illness, which can be indicated by sneezing, breathing difficulty, nasal discharge or strange clicking noises, take your pet to a veterinarian immediately, because respiratory problems can rapidly become widespread.

Having a problem with your pet? Write Pet Care Corner, Animal Rescue League of Boston, P.O. Box 265, Boston, Mass. 02117.

ATTENTION:
Parents of Teenagers

I am Mrs. Barbara M. Hugh and I would like you to meet my daughter Nana. At through her teenage years she has had a serious acne problem. Her skin was always broken out with blemishes blackheads and white heads. Within the last six years I have literally spent hundreds of dollars on Dermatologists and prescriptions with very little if any improvement.

After reading an impressive advertisement for a professional European facial by James Olivadoti, a licensed Esthetician, I made Nana's first appointment. After only one facial with James, there was considerable improvement in her complexion. By her fourth facial, and only two months later, seventy five percent of Nana's skin problems were alleviated.

By looking at my daughter, you can see how pleased she is with her new complexion, not to mention the confidence that she has regained in herself.

I wish I had known about James and his expertise in Esthetics before I had spent so much time and money trying other skin treatments.

Parents! Please do your teenage son or daughter a favor! At the first sign of blemishes or blackheads, call James for an appointment. You and your teenager will be amazed at the results."

Software makers run afoul of piracy on high (tech) seas

By Craig Savoye
Staff writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Boston

A new breed of "push-button pirates" are busy plying their plunderous trade. But their modus operandi is not the high seas, it's high-tech.

The new villains aren't sword-swinging marauders, either, but the owners of personal computers – both consumers and business users – that are innocently or intentionally copying original software and selling it to friends or using it for personal profit.

Software is the fuel that drives the engine of a computer, the instructions that link man and machine. As the sales of personal computers have boomed, so has the demand for computer programs that equip the machine to do everything from playing electronic games to doing word processing and financial analysis.

The personal computer market has blossomed from nonexistence six years ago into a $6.1 billion-a-year industry. The darker side of the business – the piracy – has mirrored that growth, and is proving harder to shake off than a shadow.

Piracy has taken a bite – some would say a chunk – out of the revenues of the mostly young companies that make up the growing field of software manufacture. Analysts estimate that anywhere from 20 to 30 percent or more of their revenues is lost to bootleggers.

One leading manufacturer of software for video games estimates that his programs have a life expectancy of about six months. After that, pirated copies become so prevalent that no one will pay retail prices to obtain an original.

For those owning personal computers or contemplating their purchase, the piracy could lead at the very least to higher prices for software. More likely, the image of the fledgling industry could be tarnished by a flood of pirated programs of dubious quality and further confuse a market already jammed with dozens of competing companies.

The record industry has been singing a baleful tune about piracy for years, but computer software makers believe their own problem will be even harder to flush out. That's because most of the piracy is done by individuals in their homes or by companies, rather than by dealers who make a business out of selling pirated programs.

Typically, businesses and large institutions buy one computer program and then make copies with a push-button process that can be accomplished in seconds on a blank diskette. Says Clive Smith, a senior analyst for the Yankee Group, a Boston high-technology consulting firm:

"No one wants to talk about it, but it's done, usually on an escalating basis. A university, for example, will buy a third or a fourth terminal and make additional copies of programs on hand, rather than spending the money to buy another original."

Software manufacturers which have taken their complaints to court have been swept into a legal labyrinth. "The law clearly protects written programs," says Gervaise Davis, a California lawyer specializing in computer software matters. "The problem is, once the program is inserted into the computer and is reduced to a series of numbers only the computer can understand, is it still protected?"

So far, half a dozen judges in separate cases have said yes, and granted injunctions against bootleggers. And in a landmark decision in Europe, a West German court found that two companies in that country were illegally copying California-based Visicorp's VisiCalc program, a leading business-oriented program for personal computers. It was the first acknowledgment by a West German court that computer programs should be granted copyright protection.

But a case in Philadelphia is causing concern throughout the industry. Apple Computer has charged that a rival is selling copies of its software programs. The competing company readily admits to the action but claims it is legally entitled to do so. In this case the judge has so far refused to grant an injunction.

In addition to legal remedies, manufacturers are exploring technological methods for foiling the bandits. A number of companies have fitted their programs with encrypting codes that make it difficult to make electronic copies off them. But manufacturers have found this to be an inconvenience to customers, an added expense to themselves, and ineffective.

"You have to understand the nature of computer buffs, who up until the last year or two were the primary market for personal computers," one dealer says. "Putting a code on a program is like slapping them in the face and challenging them to break it. And break them they do."

"At this point, both technological and legal means of redress are nothing more than holding actions until a better solution presents itself," says Mr. Davis.

VA facts

In an effort to prevent unnecessary GI home loan foreclosures, the Veterans Administration is asking all lenders, holders and servicers of GI home loans to offer veteran borrowers an opportunity to reinstate delinquent accounts through reasonable repayment plans and forebearance, John J. McNiff, director of the Boston VA Regional Office, said today.

"The agency has learned, in various contacts with delinquent borrowers, that there may not be complete understanding of partial payment regulations. Holders may accept partial payments of the arrears in appropriate circumstances.

"In cases where borrowers desire to retain their homes and appear to have the financial ability to do so, VA is urging holders to make reasonable agreements with delinquent borrowers to repay the money in arrears," he said.

If the loan is insoluble, it may be advisable that the borrower put the property up for sale. In certain instances, holders may postpone foreclosures to allow the borrowers more time to effect a private sale.

New England Home Show now in progress

The New England Home Show, which opened its door March 5th, has gathered more exhibitors than ever before in its 33-year run, once again confirming its space status as the largest public home products and services showcase in the entire country. More than 700 exhibitors have joined the Show this year, and together they'll be displaying more goods and services for the home-owner, prospective home-owner, and apartment dweller than can be seen anywhere else at one time.

Hynes Auditorium houses the New England Home Show, which attracts over 350,000 visitors each year. The annual event is viewed by most as the kick-off to the spring remodeling and re-furbishing season.

As in past New England Home Shows, Westville Homes will display a model, but this year's house is an oversized, two-story Garrison colonial, the largest model home ever constructed in the Hynes. It's size alone will make it the focal point of the exposition. The house will be completely furnished and decorated by Jordan's Furniture of Waltham, and gorgeously landscaped by Woburn's Heimlich Nursery.

The "Energy Expo" will be back, larger and more complete than before, with the highest quality energy-saving products on the market today. Renowned meteorologist Don Kent will host solar seminars, and exhibitors will demonstrate all the newest innovations in active and passive solar heating systems, wood stoves, Russian fireplaces, and other money-saving, alternate energy ideas.

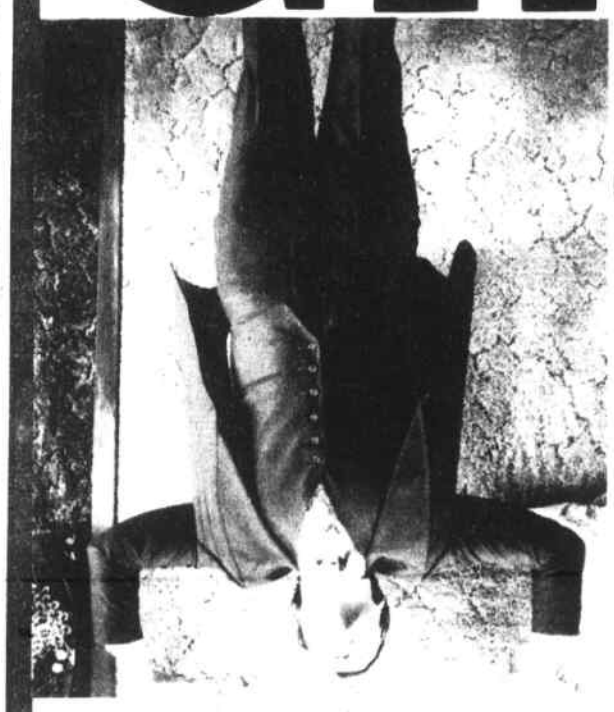

New to the New England Home Show this year is an impressive program for the "do-it-yourselfer." A continuous series of "How To" demonstrations will take place on almost every kind of simple home-related improvement, including how to install windows, doors, hardwood floors, and tile, how to make basic plumbing repairs, hang wallpaper, and how to redesign and redecorate like the pros do it, all given by experts.

Another attention-getter at this year's Show is "What's New, New England," a section of the floor devoted solely to showcasing brand-spanking new products on services for the home. "Creative Stone Surfaces" of Stoneham will be represented at the New England Homeshow this year introducing the newest concept in resurfacing. As Mr. David Lapery, owner of Creative Stone Surfaces adds, "For all homeowners who are interested in seeing this beautiful new process for walkways, steps, patios, don't miss this exhibit. Pool owners will be especially interested in viewing what enhancement river rock and small sea-shell surfacing adds to a pool, deck or patio area." Creative Stone Surfaces will also be displaying unique planters made of shells and stone for inside the home and outside property beautification. Some are fascinating gidgets and gadgets like a dish cabinet that drains, dries and stores your dishes compactly; others carry features and benefits so impressive, they may revolutionize the market, like the geothermal heat pump from Sweden, which keeps your home comfortable with heat taken from the ground.

Those in the market to buy, remodel, furnish or redecorate a home should definitely spend a few hours at the New England Home Show. It's a one-stop shopping center for the home and definitely worth the visit.

The New England Home Show runs March 5-13, at Hynes Veterans Auditorium. Show hours are Saturdays, March 5 and 12, 10 a.m.-10:30 p.m., Sunday, March 6, noon-9 p.m., Monday-Friday, March 7-11, 1 p.m.-10:30 p.m. and Sunday, March 13, noon-8 p.m.

Hands Clasped Across Border

The group of more than 100 men and women stood on either side of a speed white ribbon symbolizing the border between Canada and the United States. Clasping hands across the ribbon, they reaffirmed a pledge of international friendship.

"In the name of God, we will not take up arms against each other. We will work for peace, maintain liberty, strive for freedom and demand equal opportunities for all mankind. May our long existing peace between our two nations stimulate other peoples to follow this example. We thank Thee, O God."

The simple ceremony took place in East Glacier, Montana and marked the 50th anniversary of Waterton Glacier International Peace Park.

The proposal for the merger of two existing national parks Waterton Lake in Alberta and Glacier in Montana, was made by Rotarians in 1931. Alberta and Montana Rotarians immediately began negotiating with their respective governments. In less than a year, legislative action of both the Canadian Parliament and the U.S. Congress had established the world's first international peace park.
